The following definition of some of the pork cuts may be helpful:

Crown roast is usually made from the rib section of two pork loins. The ribs are "frenched" by removing meat from the end of each rib bone. Then the rib sections are shaped into a crown and fastened.

Butterfly chops are boneless double chops, split most of the way through the center and opened to form a butterfly shape.

Back ribs, or country ribs, are made by splitting lengthwise through the rib section near the backbone.

Side pork is trimmed to a rectangular shape. It has alternating layers of lean and fat.

Canadian bacon, cut from boneless pork loins, is cured and smoked. It is usually quite lean.

A pork cushion is a square, flat piece made by removing the bones from the shoulder. This provides a pocket for stuffing.

For the brisk fall display Boneless Pork Shoulder Roast with Honey Orange Glaze on the Rotisserie. In case you aren't an outdoor enthusiast, the glaze should be equally delicious on your roast cooked in the oven.

BONELESS PORK SHOULDER ROAST WITH HONEY ORANGE GLAZE ON THE ROTISSERIE

Prepare the grill for using the rotisserie. Insert spit through center of the roast. Center for balance and secure in place. Roast slowly. Brush with Honey Orange Glaze several times during the last 1 1/2 hour of cooking.

Time: 2 1/2 and 3 hours or to 180 degrees F. as indicated by a roast meat thermometer.

"Boneless pork loin or leg roasts are excellent also for rotisserie cooking; the same cuts with bone in are fine for covered grill cooking.

HONEY ORANGE GLAZE 1 cup honey 1/4 cup lemon juice 6 ounce can frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed 1 teaspoon ground ginger
