By SEN. B. EVERETT JORDAN

WASHINGTON—A few states have more counties than North Carolina, but I can't think of one in which such a large proportion of its population lives in small towns, rural communities or on farms.

As a matter of fact—and I doubt if many non-North Carolinians are aware of this—our state ranks 12th among the 50 in population. One factor is the large number of rural Tar Heels.

It tells what department or agency administers the program and, best of all, it gives the name and address of the person in the federal government who is the one to write or telephone for information or assistance.

To my mind, this guide fills a definite need. The commission at a professional leisure, programs or just to just to is available. North Carolina.

The Senate Agriculture Committee, of which I am a member has just published a 576-page book which was designed to help let people know what is available from the federal government for rural development.

The book, "Guide to Federal Programs for Rural Development," tells in simple non-bureau-

For the first time since the early 1960's, the 1971 labor force participation rate of married women accounted for only 16 percent of the overall civilian labor force increase for the 12 month period ending March 1971, compared to 30 to 45 percent in recent years.

Roses! Roses! Which varieties should I plant? There are so many fine varieties available that the question boils down to one of personal choice.

I requested two of my friends, both retired and avid rosarians, to give me a list of the varieties they like best. I think it significant to note that only one variety, Tropicana, was preferred by both. This gives credence to the personal choice assumption.

Friend Number One: Mr. Lincoln (dark red); Garden Party (white); American Heritage (pink); Tropicana (orange); Helen Traubel (pink); and John S. Armstrong (red).

Friend Number Two: Tiffany (pink); Crimson Glory (red); Tropicana (orange); Queen Elizabeth (pink); and P. Parfait.

Along with these varieties he likes the following: New Dawn (orange and blaze red). He tells me that New Dawn is a prolific bloomer and about as free of insect and disease troubles as any variety he grows. "The blooms are almost as large as hybrid teas but the stems are not as long."

Another piece of information he gave me was this: "I never prune my plants until all danger of freezing has passed and bud growth is initiated in the stems. This permits me to prune more intelligently because I can see which buds are going to function."

This is a good idea. If you follow his procedure, more care will be necessary when pruning so that the tender growth will not be injured when removing old stems.

I am listing four of the newer rose varieties which may be of interest.

Angel Face. This is a floribunda with lavender flowers and very fragrant.

Comanche, a grandiflora. The flowers brilliant scarlet with long, strong stems.

Golden Prince, a hybrid tea with great color; a solid non-fading bright yellow.

Colorama. Another hybrid tea with gaily decorated flowers of red and yellow tones.

Comanche and Angel Face were All-America award winners in 1969.

Taylor Trailers Are On "Go"

Three "Taylor Trailers" will be rolling down the state's highways this week, on their way to technical institutes, community colleges, colleges and universities.

On board will be members of the Pat Taylor for Governor youth organization. The young people will visit the various campuses to distribute campaign material and provide information about Lieutenant Governor Taylor.

Taylor Trailer no. 1 will visit the western third of the state, taking in an area over to Winston-Salem. The second trailer will operate within a thirty-mile radius of Greensboro. Trailer no. 3 will cover the eastern third of the state.

The three trailers are motor-campers, providing plenty of room to carry campaign materials. The trailers will be on the roads the week of April 24 - 28.

The Friday schedule will include a 2 p. m. stop at Gaston College; 3:45 stop at Cleveland Technical Institute in Shelby; and 4:30 at Gardner Webb college in Bolling Springs.

Heritage Week Is April 24-30

Several major events have been planned for the celebration of North Carolina Heritage Week, April 24-30. Heritage Week is sponsored by the Cultural Arts Division of the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction.

One of the highlights of the week will be the Southeastern North Carolina Heritage Festival at Lake Waccamaw, April 29 and 30. The celebration will include displays of North Carolina arts and crafts from 16 counties. Mrs. Robert W. Scott, who is chairman of Heritage Week, will preside at a ribbon cutting ceremony opening the event at noon on April 29. The ceremony will be conducted on the campus of Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw.

A tour titled "The North Carolina Story" will be offered by the State Museum of art as part of Heritage Week. The museum tour will emphasize the history and heritage of North Carolina as depicted in paintings and other art forms. The tour is designed especially for school children.

Also during Heritage Week, 7 history and music majors from Mars Hill College will be working as interns in Bucombe and Mitchell county schools, helping students develop cultural projects that are regional in nature.

Other highlights include a celebration at the Albert Bangert Elementary School in New Bern which feature the culture of North Carolina and the New Bern area in particular, and a festival featuring crafts, music and dance at the John C. Campbell Folk School in Brasstown. That week-long event will conclude with a Danish week-end April 28-30, featuring folk dancing and gymnastics of Danish tradition.

In addition, hundreds of schools throughout North Carolina will be participating in Heritage Week with projects concerning North Carolina history and culture.

The Department of Public Instruction is encouraging all schools and colleges and colleges to cooperate in the project by giving emphasis to the study of North Carolina history and culture. Business and industries throughout the state will offer special promotions of North Carolina products, display arts and crafts in shop windows and sponsor cultural events.

Officials estimate that at least 200,000 people were actively involved in last year's Heritage Week activities, with many thousands more indirectly affected.

"Heritage Week is designed to provide intensive focus on the history and culture of North Carolina," according to Dr. Melvin Good of the Department of Public Instruction. "It is directed toward all aspects of the state's social order, school, business and home, with special recognition given the historical and cultural heritage of major racial and ethnic groups," he added.

The Department of Public Instruction is encouraging all schools and colleges and colleges to cooperate in the project by giving emphasis to the study of North Carolina history and culture. Durham Man Teacher Of Year

WASHINGTON.—James (Jay) M. Rogers Jr., a teacher of American history and black studies at Durham (N. C.) high school, was named the 1972 National Teacher of the Year by Mrs. Richard M. Nixon at a ceremony in the White House.

Mr. Rogers, or "Jay," as he prefers to be called, is the first black scholar to be named the National Teacher of the Year.

"It was totally unexpected," Rogers said upon learning of his selection as 1972 Teacher of the Year. "I hope it is because I am an educator and not that I just happen to be black."

Rogers went on to say that he hoped his selection was an endorsement of "my idea of listening to young people. You've got to be aware of the feeling and temper of the young people you teach."

The Teacher of the Year awards, the oldest ongoing program honoring the nation's outstanding classroom teachers, is sponsored by Encyclopaedia Britannica, the Council of Chief State School Officers and Ladies Home Journal.

In a surprise gesture of the sponsors, Mrs. Nixon was named "Honorary 1972 Teacher of the Year" as a former teacher and in recognition of her continuing interest in schools. This was the first "honorary" award ever presented. Mr. Rogers presented an engraved gold brooch to her to symbolize the award.

A festival is held every year at Malvern, England, as a tribute to George Bernard Shaw.

WHAT WAS "A THERIAC OF MATTHIOLU"

Back in the 16th century, persons afflicted with the plague were frequently given a medication that consisted of 130 ingredients which when mixed and ready for the patient weighed 13 pounds. Not only was it of dubious value, but the time involved in the preparation (several days) and the cost made it almost prohibitive to the average patient.

Today we have come a long way from the Theriac of Matthioliu, but there are still some prescriptions that have to be compounded of more than one ingredient. We welcome prescriptions like this that give us a chance to show our professional skill.

For County Commissioner

Josh Hinnant Industry-Seeking Go-Getter

In April 1967, L. E. (Josh) Hinnant was appointed co-chairman of Kings Mountain Mayor John Henry Moss' industrial committee.

His service since has been of great benefit to Kings Mountain, to Cleveland County and to Cleveland County citizens.

First of ten new industrial citizens to begin operations in the Kings Mountain area of Cleveland County since the county commission candidate went to work at his new (non-paying) job, was a branch of Alcan Aluminum Company (the world's largest). Alcan decided to locate in Kings Mountain in June of that year and began operations in December.

Take a look at the growth in the Kings Mountain tax base:

1966	$23,116,466
1971	$38,624,120

ROUND FIGURE GAIN: $15,500,000

Tax base gain for Cleveland County was greater, as two of the ten new industrial citizens, Concept Furniture and Spectrum Textured Fibres, are located outside the Kings Mountain city limits.

An expanding tax base is a means of keeping tax bills lower.

More important to the individual is JOB. These new industries employ 1800 persons.

Josh Hinnant, a banker, is as interested in maintaining lowest possible tax bills as anyone and perhaps more than most. He is keenly aware of the large increase in the taxable value of your real estate, effective with upcoming tax bills, and of your fear of further increases in your county tax bill.
