Griffin's Drug Store
By WILSON GRIFFIN
Two research doctors, studying the effect of smoking on body reflexes found the reflexes reduced by as much as two-thirds within four minutes after healthy young men began smoking high-nicotine cigarettes. The reflexes usually were not back to normal until 20 minutes after smoking ceased. The obvious conclusion from these U of Michigan tests is that mental and physical reactions are hampered by cigarette smoking. It is good to note that teenage smoking is greatly reduced during recent years.
