Weekly Health Tip

By WILSON GRIFFIN

Two research doctors, studying the effect of smoking on body reflexes found the reflexes reduced by as much as two-thirds within four minutes after healthy young men began smoking high-nicotine cigarettes. The reflexes usually were not back to normal until 20 minutes after smoking ceased. The obvious conclusion from these U. of Michigan tests is that mental and physical reactions are hampered by cigarette smoking. It is good to note that teenage smoking is greatly reduced during recent years.
