near Florence, S. C., have been awarded a United States patent covering a polyester filament yarn draw texturing technique.

Their patent, No. 3,986,241, is assigned to Fiber Industries, the nation's leading manufacturer of producer-textured polyester filament yarns.

This is the third patent award in which Jones, a Shelby Plant Technical Department group leader, has been a principal and the second time that he and Mayrose, a production unit superintendent, have shared a patent award. They were listed in a patent awarded in late 1974 as inventors of a device and a related technique for continuously transferring yarn between bobbins used in the producer-texturing of Fortrel polyester. Lawson, now a development group leader at the Palmetto Plant, was a quality control engineer at the Shelby plant when he, Jones and Mayrose developed the texturing process technique now covered by Patent No. 3,986,241.

Jones is a 1967 North Carolina State University graduate. He has been with Fiber Industries since 1969. He and his wife, Charlene, and their three children are residents of Rt. 2, Kings Mountain.

Mayrose resides at 605 Country Club Rd., Shelby, with his wife, Wendy, and their daughter. A former U. S. Navy Lieutenant, Mayrose is a 1964 graduate of Auburn University with a degree in mechanical engineering. He joined FII in 1970.
