G-W Signs Gambrell, Top S.C. Running Back

BOILING SPRINGS — Hardy Gambrell, one of the most talented running backs in South Carolina, last fall, has signed a football grant-in-aid with Gardner-Webb College.

Gambrell, a 5-10½, 180-pounder, played at T. L. Hanna High School, An-person, S. C., where he was an all-conference and all-state performer. He also was a member of the South Carolina Shrine Bowl squad.

A three-year starter in football, Gambrell also is a member of the track team. "We've signed ourselves a quality player," said G-W head coach Oval Jaynes. "Gambrell has excellent speed and durability and the potential to make a great contribution to our football program."

Gambrell is the 11th high school player to sign with Gardner-Webb.

G-W Tourney Opponent To Be Named Later

BOILING SPRINGS — After already clinching a home-court advantage in the upcoming District 26 playoffs, Gardner-Webb must wait until the finals of the Carolinas Conference Tournament to learn its opponent.

Any one of four teams could land the fourth slot in the single-elimination playoffs, which begin Tuesday, March 1. Gardner-Webb is seeded No. 1 in the playoffs. The No. 2 and 3 teams already have been decided. They are St. Augustine's and Catawba with St. Augustine's being the host team. They also will play March 1.

The District 26 championship game will be played Wednesday, March 2, at a neutral site. Gardner-Webb is 28-2 on the season with one game remaining, that at Limestone College Wednesday, Feb. 23.

Catawba's success in the Carolinas Conference Tournament will have a bearing in determining G-W's playoff opponent. Berths are awarded to the CIAA Southern Division Champion (St. Augustine's), the independent with the best overall record against NAA schools (Gardner-Webb), the Carolinas Conference Tournament winner, and the remaining District 26 team with the best record.

By virtue of its record, Catawba qualifies for the playoffs regardless of its outcome in the Carolinas Conference tournament. Should Catawba win the tournament, then it would represent the conference and Pfeiffer would become the No. 4 team.

But, should a non-district 26 team, either Atlantic Christian or Pembroke State, win the Carolinas Conference Tournament, then Gullford would become the playoff representative and the Gardner-Webb opponent.

The final option occurs if a District 26 team other than Catawba wins the tournament. That team would earn the berth opposite Gardner-Webb. Other District 26 teams in the Carolinas Conference are Elon, High Point, Gullford and Pfeiffer.

TRIPLET GOATS — Herman and Hilda Goforth were surprised Sunday morning with the arrival of triplet nanny goats at their farm on Shelby Rd. Mama and Papa Goat were surprised, too, according to Mrs. Goforth. The goats are the first triplets in the pet family at the Goforths. Two of the baby goats are solid white, the third is grey mingled with white. Their weight was about two pounds, according to Hilda.

Living Done More In Family Rooms Today

The name "living room" is not quite apt as a description of the role that room actually plays in most homes.

Today, family rooms are where the living is.

The typical living room is about as lively as a museum, which is what it has largely become. It's where we put our "best" furniture — then mentally rope it off for company occasions.

Meanwhile, the family room (hub of household activities) has to make do with odds and ends of furnishings and hand-me-downs.

In the Fifties and Sixties before housing costs ballooned all out of proportion to incomes, it might have made sense to keep a room standing idle for occasional use. But anyone who has considered buying a home lately, or adding living space to an existing home, knows how expensive it is to maintain a museum in these inflationary days.

February 10, 17, 24 & March 3

(If you figure building costs at a conservative $20 per square foot, an average 12 by 15-foot living room represents an investment of $3,600, and that's before furnishings.)

Can't there be some happy medium between the living room and family room? One room that combines both good design and function? A room that not only looks attractive but works hard too?

The editors of McCall's magazine think so, and with the help of interior designers at Armstrong, they've come up with three such rooms that they're featuring in the February 1977 issue.

They're calling them "live-in" rooms because they're activity-oriented, not mere showcases.

The rooms are decorated in three different regional American styles — Southwest, Northern California and Northeast — making use of natural materials found in these places or man-made look-alikes.

They're full of decorating ideas too: built-ins, double-duty furniture, do-it-yourself products, crafts, and intriguing color schemes borrowed from the environment.

The ambience of the Northeast room is witty, playful and urbane, like the sophisticated cities of Boston, Philadelphia and New York. The focal point of the decorating is a baby grand piano, and the room is a delightful place to entertain guests.

The Northern California room is rugged, outdoorsy, suggestive of rock-ribbed coast and redwood forest. It's a room that campers, hikers and climbers will love to come back to.

The Southwest room shows the designers' thought processes at work. It was conceived for an active family whose hobbies are weaving, macrame, pottery and other native American crafts.

Because the room is busy, the color scheme is restful. The stuccoed walls (the kind you brush on) are painted a desert sand color. All of the woodwork is desert sand too: the post-and-beam construction (typical of ranch houses) which frames the seating areas; the built-in desk-worktable at the side of the room; and the wall of drawers and nooks (for skeins of yarn, clay and art supplies) at the back of the room.

All these built-ins and built-ons can be duplicated by the ordinary homeowner from stock items at the lumber yard.

The tortoise-shell blinds of split-bamboo along the back wall conceal more storage.

The plank ceiling is the do-it-yourself kind from Armstrong in a slightly darker desert sand color (actually a "bleached wood" effect). Colors in the Armstrong Place 'n Press floor tiles are desert sand (for the background) and earth brown, smoke blue and clay red (for the Indian design).
