COMINGS AND GOINGS

Mildred (Mrs. Edgar) Wengerd has returned to Baltimore, Md. after visiting Kings Mountain relatives, coming especially for the funeral of her brother, W. W. (Bill) Laughter.

USE FAMILY HEIRLOOMS

If you're stuck for a good, unusual gift item for someone special, take a look around your home.

Gifts of family heirlooms such as old books, cookbooks, sheet music, quilts or other handiwork, or even furniture, will be greatly appreciated by those close to you, say extension specialists at N. C. State University.

This is a particularly good giving idea for older persons, perhaps on fixed incomes, who can distribute some of the things they've collected through the years. Inheritance taxes can be avoided and the valuable or sentimental object will go to someone you know will appreciate and care for it.

Family heirloom gifts also help to bond family members and generations together.

Honorable mentions in the scholarship competition were three Kings Mountain Senior High students, all of whom were awarded $25 U. S. Savings Bond.
