(EDITOR'S NOTE — The Rev. Russell Fitts is pastor of Bethlehem Baptist Church and recently spent a week in Harrogate, Tenn., scene of devastating rains and flooding.)
By REV. RUSSELL FITTS
Special To Mirror-Herald

As I drove to Harrogate, Tenn. on Sat., Apr. 9 two things occupied my thoughts; the unfamiliar road and the bank robbery and murders in Kodak, Tenn.

The latter was tragic. Four persons had been forced to lie face down on the floor in the bank and they were executed gangland style. One victim lived for two days after the shootings.

But as I drove nearer my destination I thought more about the road I traveled. There were up to four foot drops where the edge of the highway had disappeared. The rains in that area had been terrible.

The people in Harrogate were not thinking about the murders in Kodak because they had been preoccupied with their own well-being. They had just gone through the worst flooding in the history of the county.

On Easter Sunday as I began conducting revival services at Harrogate Baptist Church, I was told no one remembers when so many people had gathered there for an Easter service.

I did not notice any tension among the people and I learned they are friendly and tough. They smile and go back to rebuilding their homes. The pastor of the church announced that any help the people could give the flood victims could be left at the local bank.

Just a few miles north of Harrogate the Army erected tents and brought in supplies of food and clothing to give relief to the hundreds of persons left homeless by the water and mud. The Army was also making arrangements for housing for the people after the troops moved out, until the homeowners could clean the deep mud from their own homes — the ones left standing.

The floods the people have learned to live with, but not the senseless killings over in Kodak. I also learned the new sheriff of Claiborne County is now wearing a gun for the first time. The Kodak murders and a shooting attack on one of his deputies has convinced him to wear the gun.

In my room at the Wilderness Inn, which is situated on the mountainside, I could look out over some of the most beautiful country I have ever seen. It caused me to think that church, floods, death and beautiful scenery is all a part of daily life and it will go on until . . .
