WEEKLY Health Tips

From Wilson Griffin

In America today, there are more than 4,000,000 home accidents each year — 30,000 are fatal; 225,000 accidents involve washing machines, stoves, power mowers and heating devices; 30,000 accidents involve extension cords. The message is plain — great caution must be used in using heating and electrical equipment and machinery with moving parts. Parents should stop and analyze the dangers involved in each household appliance and then carefully explain the risks to children and instruct them in safe operation.
