return an answer to us when necessary. In reaching a service member stationed out of the Continental U.S., we call AMCROSS, a centralized office located in Washington, D. C. who in turn relay our message to the Red Cross office where the service member may be stationed. Within a matter of hours the emergency message is received. Red Cross volunteers are on duty at VA hospitals and also supply such items, as lap covers, and bed socks to the patients. Disaster teams are on call to work with firemen and fire victims and seven members of the Disaster Team helped with assignments during the Western Carolina floods. Many others worked through the night during ice storms, feeding workers, opening shelters, checking nursing homes in the area and assisting those living in mobile homes during wind storms

Blood quota for the year is 5,500 pints of blood and during the first six months of the fiscal year a total of 2,816 pints were collected at bloodmobile visits.

"Red Cross could not perform these services without the many dedicated volunteers throughout the county," said Mrs. Timms.
