

DINING AREA — Sandi Shockley refinished a pine table, and six chairs, adding blue curtains, cushions, and conglomium for wood effect to enhance this area of the dining-sitting-kitchen area of the house, which has been completely renovated. Colonial blue, brown and wheat features the decor in the large family area.

Home Where Children Can Grow

all the weight-lifting and music starts going in the afternoons," said their proud mother.

The boys' bedrooms are painted gold and brown with plaid wallpaper in the bath. Misty's room is green with yellow and white daisy wallpaper for accent with eyelet curtains and bedspreads enhancing a high spindle bed which was given her by Sandi's great aunt.

Moving from a two-bedroom house into a 12-room house with five bedrooms has given the growing family plenty of room to grow. And they like it.

The remodeling work really began in October and Sandi and Danny hope to do more, concentrating on the upper level as the children grow.

Mrs. Shockley has enrolled in day classes, on Tuesday and Thursday mornings, at Cleveland Tech and is majoring in fashion merchandising. She moved to Kings Mountain 11 years ago with her family, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Kiser, Jr., from San Fernando, California, her hobby is painting and sketching.

Mr. Shockley, native of Kings Mountain, is son of John Shockley and the late Mrs. Shockley, and is employed by Oates Shell Service Station. His hobby is golfing.

Creating a comfortable home for her family in a relaxed setting is the secret to their new home which the young couple has achieved well and loved doing.

PLAYTIME IS FUN TIME — Three-year-old Matt Shockley's room is full of the usual books and toys that young folk like. Matt's older brothers and sisters especially like to read books and ride the handmade rocky horse, on which Doug is sitting, and which Sandi found at a flea market and refinished. Shane, left at back of room, Misty, in rocker, and Doug Shockley pose in pretty setting.

Teachers Attend DKG Meet

The Beta Epsilon Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International met for its quarterly meeting Sat., Mar. 18 at the Lincoln House, Lincolnton.

Following a breakfast, Jane Choate, Catherine Abernathy and Ermintrude Mullen, three Lincolnton teachers, presented an informative program — progress through achievement in the individual education program in our schools.

The teachers explained the needs, goals and evaluations in this federal program, which was begun in 1977 to deal with handicapped children and exceptional children.

Following a brief business meeting, Genevieve Matthews, chairman of nomination, presented a slate of officers for the coming year.

President — Wilma Selby; vice president — Jane Falls; second vice president — Jen Williams; recording secretary — Ruby Goff; corresponding secretary — Margaret Baird; treasurer; — Sara Roof; Parliamentarian — Helen Neal.

Susie Howard, director of Region 7, presented Maude Carter the president's pin. Mrs. Carter is retiring president.

Attending the meeting from Kings Mountain District Schools were Margaret Baird, Betty Gamble, Susie Howard, Elizabeth Gamble, Gussie Huffstetter, Frances Lohr, Margaret McGinnis, Christine Ramseur, Amie B. Roberts, Charlotte Shuford and Margaret Spratt.
