

Field-Based College Program Set For August 22

campus at the four-year college is $66 per semester hour.

Gardner Webb College faculty members will teach the evening classes.

A total of 128 semester hours is required for graduation, said Dr. Sale in reply to a question.

Grady Howard, administrator of KM Hospital, and Mrs. Betty Slaughter, Director of Nursing, said that many nurses are interested in obtaining more credits for a full degree. Dr. Knotts explained that Gardner Webb now offers a two-year nursing program but is planning a long-range program to move to four-year. Mrs. Slaughter said many nurses had graduated in a three-year program and needed more credits.

Mrs. Wanza Davis, finance officer at KM District Schools, said that many secretaries in the area are interested in the evening classes for additional credits and training.

Mayor John Henry expressed optimism in the success of the program for the Kings Mountain area. He said that city employees are also interested in enrichment courses and business and professional people want to improve their skills in areas related to their occupations. He suggested that a survey be made of the area business community, and others, to assess the needs of the community for specific courses, which require minimum of 15 for enrollment.

Dr. Sale noted that numerous Gaston College students who have obtained A.A. degrees are interested in continuing their education and Kings Mountain would be more accessible to them because many of the students work during the day and want to continue their education during evenings.

The "exploratory" session was received enthusiastically by leaders of business community who attended, along with school officials.

Larry Allen, principal of Central School, asked if the program would exclude the high school graduate. Dr. Sale commented that younger students require counseling and the on-campus services that the older citizen does not require. "The evening course for the adult requires a great amount of initiative on the part of the student," said Dr. Sale in a classroom where the average age of the student is 34.

Supt. William F. Davis, who presided, said he is very enthusiastic about the possibility of a field-based program for Kings Mountain and offered the school facilities for the classrooms.

Dr. Knotts noted that Gardner Webb is in the process of making changes in its overall philosophy and has a close relationship with community colleges and enjoys a close relationship with area communities.

The program here would encompass Greater Kings Mountain, bringing in students from Shelby, Gastonia, Cherryville, Lincolnton, Blacksburg and other areas.

He said that the college age population of 18-24 is shrinking and that college officials anticipate a leveling-off of college-age population at Gardner Webb. He said that applications for the Fall enrollment are "up," but if the enrollment tops 1500 that more facilities would have to be built. "We see a trend in older students returning to college," he said, and we have the resources for continuing education classes and want to use them in this area if you need us."

"Our concern is not just for degree students," said Mr. Davis. Local students interested can contact the college or Mr. Davis at Kings Mountain District Schools office on Parker St.

Gibb Is Chairman Of Planning Group

Gladys Gibb of Old Fort was elected chairman of the Isothermal Planning and Development Commission at the recent meeting.

Other officers are Hugh Dover of Shelby, vice-chairman; and Max Padgett of Rutherford County, secretary-treasurer. New Executive Committee members chosen are I. K. Flack, Jr. of Rutherford County, Bill Weaver of Shelby, Guy Rabb of McDowell County and Fred Placak of Polk County.

The board heard a report that the Commission has been offered a $9,000 planning grant to develop an Aging Plan and is currently seeking applicants for an Aging Planner.

The board also approved operation of the Youth Work Experience Out of School protests by the Employment Security Commission in Cleveland, McDowell, Polk and Rutherford Counties.

Baby-proof Home to Prevent Accidents

Baby-proofing the home to prevent unnecessary accidents is a parent's job.

According to agricultural extension specialists at A & T State University, far too many children die from accidents which could have been avoided if simple precautions had been taken.

Because most accidents happen before a child reaches age 2, the parent must anticipate hazards and eliminate them.

The only proper storage for all medicines and household cleaning supplies is under lock and key. The old out-of-sight, out-of-reach methods aren't sufficient.

Electrical outlets should be covered and expandable safety gates should be placed across the stairways.

Special safety latches will keep the baby out of cupboards and drawers.

Parents should also be ready to handle any accident that does occur.

A complete list of emergency phone numbers should be kept by the phone for easy access.

Newly hatched geese can begin following their mother around after about two hours.

Higher Prices

Beef Supply-Demand Is Tilting Toward Farmer

The national beef supply situation looks like better times are ahead for producers, who have suffered through a lengthy period of depressed prices.

On the other side of the coin, consumers may see the lower supply translated into higher costs at the supermarket.

In both cases, changes are expected to come gradually and may not be in strong evidence until after 1978.

North Carolina State University agricultural extension specialists, interpreting the most recent U.S. Department of Agriculture animal inventory figures, suggest that there will be a modest decline in beef production the remainder of the year.

The anticipated decline is in the 2 to 4 per cent range.

The supply of feeder cattle—young animals still several months away from slaughter size—has declined sharply from a year ago. Feeder calves are North Carolina's No. 1 beef product.

The inventory of all cattle and calves on farms in the U.S. at the beginning of the year was down 5 per cent from a year earlier. This was the third consecutive year in which the inventory declined. It represents a drop of almost 16 million head since the peak in 1975.

This is the sharpest rate of decline in history.

Contributing to the decline were a smaller calf crop in 1977, a commercial cattle slaughter of 41.8 million head and a 5.5-million head commercial calf slaughter.

The likely trend over the next two or three years is a gradual buildup of cow herds, reduced numbers of animals going to market and improving prices for the cattleman.
