Program Réduces Crime

The Cleveland County Farm Bureau has initiated a property protection service designed to reduce the incidence of rural crime.

According to Walter Davis, president of the farm organization, the program is part of a state and national effort in which participants are urged to mark all farm equipment and similar items which, if stolen would probably travel interstate. Household and personal items may also be marked.

Davis said the program is a cooperative effort involving Farm Bureau, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the N.C. Sheriffs' Association, Farm Equipment Dealers Association, N.C. Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, N.C. Department of Justice, N.C. Crime Prevention Officers Organization, N.C. Agricultural Extension Service, and the N.C. Department of Agriculture.

The new system uses an individual identification number which is composed of 10 characters. It tells the state and county of residence and other information that can be used in tracing ownership.

Davis has appointed a committee of Farm Bureau Directors composed of Dale Blanton, Chairman; Jack Scism, Edwin Dalton and Henry Dameron, County Extension Chairman to coordinate the program in Cleveland County.

According to Dale Blanton the identification number is obtained by contacting the Cleveland County Sheriff's Office, Communication Center, telephone, 482-4422. Calls should be made during working hours 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Blanton said, "The first step is for the farmer to receive his identification number from the communications center. Then he should secure one of the pieces of marking equipment which will be at the County Extension Office, Burns Vo Ag. Department, and Crest Vo-Ag. Department. The coding system enables law enforcement officials anywhere in the United States to prove theft and to trace stolen items back to their rightful owner."

Henry Dameron, County Extension Chairman, commenting on this program said, "The simple but effective coding system has potential of reversing rise in rural crimes in our county, state and the nation. Farmers are encouraged to participate in this program. The identification number will include NC which represents North Carolina, 023, which is the code for Cleveland County and four digits for the farmers number plus the letter representing his last name."

Dameron said that should this piece of equipment be stolen and taken to anywhere in the United States, law enforcement officers could look at the number NC0230001D and quickly recognize it to be from North Carolina, Cleveland County, and the farmer was the first farmer registered with the letter

The Cleveland County Sheriff's office would be notified and the office in turn would get in touch with the farmer. Farmers needing more information about his program may contact members of the Farm Bureau Board of Directors, Dale Blanton and his committee, or the County Extension Office.
