

Central School Superlatives Are Named

Sixteen Central School student newspaper on campus, as "Central's Best" or superlatives for the school year ending this week.

Each year for the past five years, the student newspaper has recognized those students who have exhibited talents in the areas of academics, athletics, artistic ability and citizenship. Also recognized are those students whose personalities reflect wit and humor, friendly attitudes and appearance. There is a special honor awarded two students who in the newspaper staff's opinion merit all these attributes and are designated the best-all-around students.

The Central Rap's final edition, to be distributed to students at Awards Day

Friday, will contain the pictures of the honored group.

Those honored were Phil Robinson and Pat Davis, best looking; Eric (Pete) Anderson and Melinda Roberts, best athletes;

Thomas Putnam and Lisa Nation, best artists; Charles Watson and Sonya McClain, best wit and humor; Quint Rikard and Beth Lineberry, best friends; Shawn Gibby and Rebecca Brown, academically speaking; Ricky White and Deura Haney, best citizens; and Brad Reynolds and Carolyn Smith, best all around.

John Pettus is faculty advisor for "The Central Rap."

ATHLETES OF YEAR—Melinda Roberts and Pete Alexander have been selected Central School Athletes of the Year by the student newspaper staff.

CITIZENS OF YEAR—Debra Hainey and Ricky White are Central School Citizens of the Year selected by "The Rap" staff.

FRIENDLY—Both Lineberry and Quint Rikard were chosen "most friendly" in the list of superlatives of "Central's Best" during voting by the student newspaper staff.

GED Examinations Are Set
