Post Card Collection On Display At Gaston

DALLAS...An antique post card collection will be exhibited at Gaston College on January 14. The exhibit is the personal collection of Dr. Johnny Young and his wife, Ruth, at Catawba College in Salisbury.

Dr. Young received his A.B. at Catawba College, his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He was a Fulbright scholarship recipient and studied in Lille, France. He did further studies at the Institut des Etudes, Pau, France and SUNY, New York, N.Y. He is Professor of French and Chairman of Languages and Literature at Catawba College.

He and his wife met while they were students at Catawba College. Mrs. Young graduated from Salisbury High School and received her A.B. from Catawba College where she received the first Betty Smith Playwriting Award at the Carolina Drama Festival in Chapel Hill. She did graduate study at Chapel Hill. She has led numerous conferences and workshops in Drama, poetry, and writing. She leads a yearly workshop for North Carolina English Teachers. Ruth Young has her M.A. in Dramatic Art and does most of the narration.

Dr. Young says, "The cards exhibited are from the turn of the century and are beautifully illustrated and colored. The prettiest ones are those which were used for greetings at certain seasons - Christmas, New Years, Thanksgiving and St. Patrick's Day."

Specific information is given about special cards. St. Patrick's Day cards lend to the telling of the legend of St. Patrick. Santa Claus cards indicate how his appearance has changed through the years.

Dr. and Mrs. Young give the program together, using slides of the cards. They give information on the artists and other interesting information.

The exhibit will be held in the Myers Center TV Lounge at 11 a.m. and again at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, January 14. There is no admission charge. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Two Credit Courses Set At Cleveland Tech

Two three-hour credit courses, one in educational psychology and one in methods for teaching industrial subjects, will be offered at Cleveland Technical College this spring by Western Carolina University.

Registration for WCU courses will be held at the first class meetings.

Educational Psychology (PSY 321) will be taught Tuesdays from 3:30 until 6:30 p.m., March 2 through May 25.

Methods for Teaching Industrial Subjects (EDSE 320) will be taught Thursdays from 3:30 until 6:30 p.m., March 4 through May 27.

Cost of each course is $133.50 based on an enrollment of 20 students. If less than 20 students register, the fee will be adjusted to the number present at registration.

For more information, contact the Division of Continuing Education, Western Carolina University, Cullowhee, N.C. 28723, telephone (704) 227-7397.

Telecourses Slated At Cleveland Tech

Telecourses for college credit are being offered by Cleveland Technical College for winter quarter, 1982.

According to Mrs. Sandra Hardin, dean of instruction, the two telecourses to begin Saturday, January 16, are "Making It Count" and "It's Everybody's Business".

"Making It Count" is a four credit introductory course on computer principles including computer languages, programming logic and hardware/software fundamentals.

"It's Everybody's Business", a four-credit course, is a survey of business operations including management, financing, production and marketing.

Both telecourses to begin, Saturday, January 16, will be broadcast on Channel 17, 33, 58 and Shelby Cablevision 8. Video tapes of the telecourses may be viewed in the library on Cleveland Tech's campus - 8 a.m. - 10 p.m., - Monday - Thursday, and 8 a.m. - 4 p.m., Friday.

Telecourse registration is scheduled for Monday, January 4 from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. or by appointment with Mrs. Maxine Romney, Telecourse Moderator, through January 15.

For further information, call Mrs. Romney, Cleveland Technical College, 137 S. Post Road, Shelby, N.C. 484-4000.

Recital Slated At Abbey

BELMONT—A flute and piano recital will be given on the campus of Belmont Abbey College on Thursday, January 7, at 8 p.m. in the Abbey Church.

Flutist will be Clifford Tretick, visiting artist-in-residence at Coastal Carolina Community College, Jacksonville, N.C. Tretick, who began studying flute at the age of nine, was named by the 1981 National flute Association Competition to be "internationally" on of the top three flutists under the age of 27.

He was the winner of the 1978 Indiana-Aspen Scholarship Competition to attend the Aspen Music Festival, and also won the 1981 North Carolina School of the Arts Concerto Competition. He received the most prestigious award bestowed by the N.C. School of the Arts: the Nancy S. Reynolds Merit Scholarship given to the "most outstanding returning student" in music.

Tretick will be accompanied by Nelson Padgett of Baltimore at the piano. The two musicians were roommates at the N.C. School of the Arts.

The concert is open to the public. There will be no charge for admission.

G-W Students Run For Poor

Boiling Springs—Many students, faculty members and administrators at Gardner-Webb College participated in a month long Crop Run to earn money to stop world hunger.

Runners, which included Gardner-Webb College's President Craven E. Williams with 200 miles and College Minister Richard McBride with 110 miles, encouraged others to pledge a certain amount of money per mile.

Crop, a community fundraising and educational arm of Church World Service, will receive the major part of the funds with a percent of the funds staying in the local agency.

Money received by Crop will go to assist 50 countries to grow their own food. Crop is educating people about World Hunger and encouraging self-development.

Telecourse Set At GC

DALLAS...Gaston College, A member of North Carolina Consortium for Instructional Telecommunications in cooperation with the UNC Center for Public Television, is again turning the dial to the media of television for the offering of college credit courses.

A telecourse is a complete learning system designed for at-home or off-campus use by adult learners. These courses are equivalent in content to those on-campus. The televised lessons allow demonstrations, interviews, and visual representation not available in traditional classes. Components of the course include: broadcast video lessons, written assignments, on-campus orientation session, and telephone "HOT LINE" for the student/teacher communication. Other components include, textbooks and study guides, tests, on-campus seminars, and all the support services of Gaston College.

Many students find the convenience of a televised course allows them to take college classes without the scheduling problems of on-campus college. Because of responsibilities at home, disability, erratic work schedules or the high cost of transportation, prospective students might consider at-home televised courses as a professional development tool.

During the winter/spring, 1982 quarter, Gaston College will offer a course by the way of television. "Making It Count" (Data Processing Fundamentals), consists of 4 credit hours (5 contact hours). It has been approved by Gaston County Schools for Teacher Renewal. It is a basic course on computer principles and their application to business. The tuition for this course is $13.00. "Making It Count" is produced by Boeing Computer Services, Inc. Course topics include the following: Historical Development of Computers, Fundamental Computer Elements, Introduction to Programming, Basic Capabilities, System Analysis, Acquiring Computer Systems, Management Decision Making and Microprocessing.

The Data Processing video lessons will be telecast over Channel 58. The series will run Saturday, January 16, through Saturday, April 3. The other scheduled days and hours may be obtained from Gaston College.

Students must attend either an orientation session on Monday, January 11, or the orientation session on Wednesday, January 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the Myers Center, Conference Room 2 on the Gaston College Campus. Fees will be paid at the orientation session.

For further information, call the Telecourse "hot line" at Gaston College, 922-3136.
