Suggested hay fever relief

Hay fever is a nasal allergy caused by pollen, spores, dust, and other agents. It has little to do with either hay or fever, neither does untreated hay fever progress to asthma.

The best treatment, once a clinical diagnosis has been made, is avoidance of the offending substance. When symptoms do occur (sneezing, itchy, runny noses, and watery eyes) consult a pharmacist you have confided in for an anti-histamine blocking agent, or a decongestant loosening agent. You may need a change of medications for successful relief.

Dear Mr. President:

If the American Dream of affordable homeownership is to be preserved, your help is indispensable.

Somehow our country's leadership decided that the ability of the average American to own a home would no longer be a matter of national priority. That decision does not reflect my wishes. The children of this country must be allowed the Dream that has so enriched my life.

Mr. President, I know you are willing to make the difficult decision to do what is right. Please lead us in this effort.

Please, Mr. President, save the American Dream.

Sincerely,
