Mack's Jersey Retired

Kings Mountain High School retired the jersey of former football standout Kevin Mack during annual awards day ceremonies Monday at B.N. Barnes Auditorium.

Mack's number 20 will be permanently displayed in the school trophy case.

KMHS head football coach and athletic director Dan Brooks presented the jersey to Principal Bob McRae. Mack came from Clemson University, where he played on last year's national championship collegiate team, and received a standing ovation from the approximately 900 students, teachers, and guests who attended the program.

Mack was a standout tailback for the Mountaineers in 1980, leading the team to an 8-2 overall record and second place in the rugged Southwestern 3-A Conference.

Mack is the school's all-time single game and single season rushing leader. He gained 1,585 yards during his senior season and had a high game of 287 yards rushing in a victory over R-S Central.

Mack was All-Southwestern Conference, All-State and played in the East-West All-Star game his senior year.

He earned a full scholarship to Clemson, where he broke in as a freshman as a reserve tailback and kickoff return specialist. He was hampered half of his freshman season with an ankle injury.

His sophomore season, he alternated at the fullback position with Jeff McCall during the first eight games of the year. He started the last three regular season contests and also the national championship Orange Bowl game, in which the Tigers nailed down a perfect season and the NCAA title with a 21-15 victory over Nebraska.
