Dr. Tally's Snake Program Highlights Park Activities

Conserve fuel and energy by taking a mini-trip to Kings Mountain National Military Park this Friday and Saturday evening, June 25 and 26, for the park's evening programs.

Friday's evening program will feature Dr. Joseph Tally's ever famous program "Don't Tread on Me." Dr. Tally, an amateur herpetologist, will discuss some of the myths and folklore surrounding the snakes common to this region. Identification methods, habits, and the benefits of those intriguing reptiles will also be examined. All who are interested should meet at the National Park Visitor Center at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday evening as the Whip-poorwills fill the air with their mysterious call, two participants of the Battle of Kings Mountain will return to tell you how it really was on October 7, 1780. Park interpreters Jim Anderson and Steve Marlowe will give you the Patriot's and Loyalist's impression of the battle as they guide you around the Battlefield trail by candlelight. All who are interested should meet at the National Park Visitor Center at 8:15 p.m. In case of inclement weather, the film Age of Alaska will be shown in the Visitor Center auditorium.

Weather permitting, the Living History program will also continue on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. A Revolutionary War campsite will be set up near the Visitor Center and tended by Park employees in Revolutionary period dress. The camp will feature cooking over an open fire and also musket and rifle demonstrations at 1, 2, 3, and 4 p.m.

Also the 179-year-old Howser House will be open for visitation on Sunday afternoons from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. A member of the Park interpretive staff will be stationed at the house to reveal the history behind this locally famous rock structure.

Other ongoing daily programs include an 18 minute film, Kings Mountain-Turning Point in the South; an 8 minute audio-visual museum exhibit program; 1.5 mile Battlefield trail; 16 mile system of hiking trails, and 10 mile system of horse trails.
