

Grover Police Chief Turns In Resignation

From Page 1-A

Brown said he recently talked to Mayor Bill McCarter and told the mayor he would stay on as chief if the town would increase his salary by 60 percent, rehire Anthony as reserve officer, and approve the police policies and procedures manual Brown presented to the council 10 months ago. He said he asked McCarter to let him know by last Wednesday whether or not the council would grant his requests, but had not heard anything from McCarter.

McCarter said he did not call a commissioners meeting because he did not want to discuss the matter until he had received Brown's requests in writing.

McCarter said the town will advertise for another police chief, but does not know if the town would hire another patrolman.

"Having two policemen is quite a burden financially," he said. McCarter said $30,000 is budgeted for the police department and that amount is equal to the ad valorem taxes the town collects.

"We were living on federal money," McCarter said. "That makes an awfully tight budget."

McCarter called Brown a good policeman. "I have no complaints," he said.
