Support Cancer Study

The seemingly ordinary lives we lead—the conditions we live, work and play under, the products we use, the food we eat—all may increase our risk of developing cancer. To learn what exactly in our lifestyle and environment poses a health threat, we need to rely on research studies like the American Cancer Society's current Cancer Prevention Study II.

This week marks the start of Cancer Prevention Study II in Cleveland County and communities all over the country. Volunteers from the Cleveland County Unit of the American Cancer Society will be asking their friends and neighbors to participate in the study by filling out a detailed health and lifestyle questionnaire.

The Society's first Cancer Prevention Study (1959-1972) was instrumental in informing the American public about the dangers of smoking. The study identified cigarettes as the culprit behind lung cancer and heart disease. This is a fact that we take almost for granted these days, but documentation was still meager until then.

At this time of great public concern over possible environmental causes of cancer, there is a definite need for a study the scope of Cancer Prevention Study II. With rumors flying that just about everything causes cancer, the study will help to identify which factors really do pose a serious threat to our health. Are x-rays safe? Can the birth control pill do more harm than good? How dangerous is that morning cup of coffee? These questions and many others hopefully will get answered by the study findings, and perhaps shed light on what can be done to reduce our risk of cancer and other diseases.

More than one million men and women will take part in the study, and if you're one of those asked to participate, we urge your cooperation. The study will take up very little of your time—filling out an easy-to-follow questionnaire for now, and responding to a few questions from your American Cancer Society volunteer two years from now. The study's findings are difficult to predict, but we share the optimism of Dr. Robert V.P. Hutter, national president of the ACS, who hopes that Cancer Prevention Study II "will help us plan a world without cancer for all children."

Broyhill Tours District

Broyhill mentioned that the Department of Energy "is bloated in size and needs some reduction" and that enough fat could be cut in that program alone to fund the entire Older Americans Act.

"With delicate surgery, we could save the program," Broyhill said.

Broyhill also said he favors some cuts in the defense bill.

"I'm not one of those persons that think defense is a sacred cow," he said. "I'm the only one from the North Carolina delegation that voted against the recent defense bill for 1983 because I think it's too high."

Rev. Noah Caldwell, an active participant in the KM Aging Program, asked Broyhill why tobacco and phone service were taxed "and not alcohol, which is sending people to Hell everyday. I don't understand why you always tax essential things, such as the telephone," he said.

"I agree with you," said Broyhill. "We did not have an opportunity to vote on an amendment of that kind. It wouldn't bother me if people had to stop drinking."

Rev. Caldwell also asked why Congress was going to cut social security.

"I don't know where you're getting your information," Broyhill said. "But we're not going to cut social security. The President has appointed a commission to look into the system but the committee has yet to report and there's nothing been voted on to cut social security. In fact, it was recently increased."

"Then why did you on the questionnaire you recently mailed out ask if we'd rather see social security reduced or borrow money from another fund?" Caldwell asked.

"Because, if taxes are not sufficient, the money will have to come from the general fund," Broyhill said.

Margaret Phillips said she drives for the KM Aging's transportation program and stands to lose her job if the funds are eliminated. She said she has lost one kidney and suffers from high blood pressure and arthritis and was instructed by her doctor to quit her job in a local textile mill.

"I was turned down for disability and they were kind enough to give me a job as a driver," she said. "If I lose my job, I won't have anything."

"I pick up a lot of people who are in bad shape," Mrs. Phillips said. "I see a lot of people who couldn't go to the doctor without Title V."

Michael Monroe, who works as a volunteer in the National Disabled Persons unit in Kings Mountain as well as with the Senior Citizens Program, told Broyhill that he favors a balanced budget, "but you have to take each aspect and take care of the older Americans, who have taken care of us for all these years.

"I can assure you all that your feelings have been taken to heart," Broyhill said. "I repeat this is a large bill and the President has disapproved it because of $800 million, or five to six percent of the total bill."
