Ask About Wildlife

QUESTION: What is the legal rifle caliber for hunting deer in Burke and Cladwell counties? Is the .223 legal for hunting deer.

ANSWER: There are no restrictions on the caliber of rifle used for hunting deer in Burke and Cladwell counties or other counties in Western North Carolina - although it is recommended that calibers larger than the .22 be used.

Cleveland county has a local law which requires the hunter to obtain the landowners permission before hunting with a center fire rifle of any caliber on his or her property, and a number of counties in eastern North Carolina have restrictions on the use of rifles in hunting deer. If you plan to hunt in the eastern part of the state you should carefully check the regulations, including local laws, before taking to the field. You can get information on local laws pertaining to hunting and trapping by contacting your local Wildlife Enforcement Officer or by calling the Wildlife Commission's toll-free hotline number in Raleigh. That number is 1-800-662-7137.

By Ross Baumgardner

What is Sertoma?

The name Sertoma is a contraction of the words, SERVICE TO MANKIND.

The Sertoma Club exists for the high and noble purpose of benefiting mankind at large.

Lynn Wellborn, president of the local Sertoma Club, disclosed some interesting facts to our committee at a recent meeting. One such informative fact: Communicative disorders constitute our nation's number one handicapping disability. Studies indicate that more people suffer from speech-language-hearing impairments than from heart disease, paralysis, epilepsy, blindness, tuberculosis, cerebral palsy, muscular dystrophy, and multiple sclerosis combined.

As one of their projects, the local Sertoma Club is asking for any hearing aid devices no longer in use or needed by their owners. They hope to obtain enough repairable aids for refurbishing and later issue them to the needy. If you have one you will donate, call Mr. Wellborn evenings at home, 739-3325, or call us at 739-5938. This is a beautiful, worthwhile project to help those in our community and deserves your support.

In view of the recent Tylenol murders, fears are well-warranted that children could be given poisoned goodies while making their Halloween trick or treating rounds. These safety tips could make the difference between their receiving a treat or a vile, harmful, maybe deadly trick.

1 - Firmly warn you children NOT TO EAT from their treat bag until it has been inspected at home by one of the parents. Look for damaged wrappers, unusual odor or other signs of tampering.

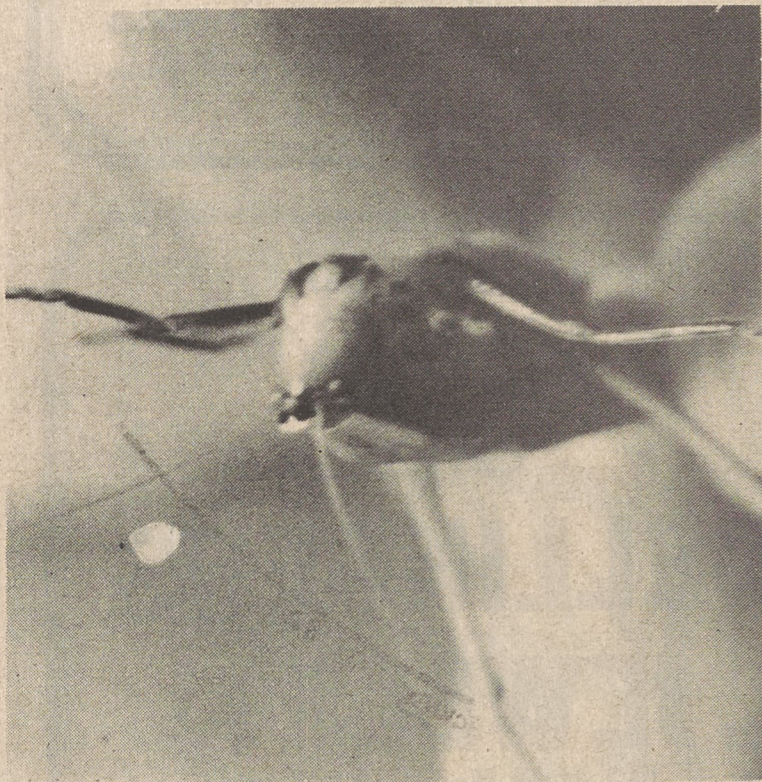

- 2 - Give and accept only wrapped or packaged candy.
- 3 - Visit only familiar homes or neighborhoods.
- 4 - Wear light-colored clothing or trick-treat during daylight.
- 5 - Don't send or allow young children out without an adult.
- 6 - Don't assume fruit is safe. They could contain poison, razor blades or pins.

7 - The best attitude is to assume nothing is safe until examined by a competent adult.

8 - The safest method for the little goblins is to provide home parties, community center activities or attend one of the many churches having Halloween festivities.

Remember, they are your children. It's your responsibility to provide them with the proper safety precautions and supervision whether they like it or not. It's not worth a lifetime of grief and regret for one evening of reckless or disastrous fun. Will you be safe or sorry?

LOCUST - This insect which closely resembles a grasshopper is a seven-year locust, according to Ken Mason of Kings Mountain who found it recently at the Waffle House. Mason said the locusts usually travel in swarms and eat everything green that's in their path. The locusts lay eggs and hatch every seven years.
