Headache Cause May Be Pinch Nerve

According to a report issued by the N.Y. Journal of Medicine, the cause of headache in over 90% of 2,000 patients studied was a mechanical irritation of the nerves that exist between the bones of the neck. The report states that "Direct injury to the neck may be caused by a blow or fall" that could easily irritate delicate spinal nerves.

American Weekly Magazine informed readers, "Headaches strike 18,000,000 Americans on a regular basis," each day some 21 tons of aspirin are consumed in the attempt to gain relief.

Modern chiropractic treatment seeks to eliminate this irritation of spinal nerves and produce effective relief of neck tension and headaches.
