office and I have the wholehearted support of my family and friends."

"Many times we, as citizens of Kings Mountain, are too content to become involved in the affairs of our city, so we sit back and let someone else do our thinking for us. I became more keenly aware of this after hearing Senator Ollie Harris speak to our Class of '48 reunion. He urged our class members to become more involved and concerned about our city and state politics. I, too, would like to see our citizens become more concerned about the affairs of our city and to speak out on the issues that concern each of us. If there are any problems that arise, that should be corrected, it is up to the citizens to work together to bring about a change or solution to that problem. Working together to make our city the kind of city we can be proud of and one where others would want to live, work, and raise their families. By running for commissioner I feel that this would give me an opportunity to serve all the people of Kings Mountain.

"Many good things have been done to improve our city, which I appreciate," she added. "However, I feel that there is still much to be accomplished. The water supply to the homes in our area is way below standard and I feel that with all the federal grants that this city has received in the past, that this situation could have been solved long, long ago. I believe in helping the people of our city before branching out to help those in other areas and towns. Some street repair is being done, but there are still many more to be repaired. I would like to see our streets and sidewalks kept cleaner and the grass cut.

"Also, our recreation program is way below par. The new construction of seats at the city park is a great improvement, but our recreation program as a whole leaves much to be desired. We definitely need a much improved, well rounded recreation program for people of all ages, one that is well planned and well supervised. I would like to see some new business come to our downtown area so that our people who want to shop at home can support our local merchants. By working together, I think we can see much of this accomplished and make Kings Mountain a city to be proud of."

"I wish to serve as a representative of all the children and parents of our school system," she went on. "I will listen to all concerns from parents, students, teachers, administrators and all other citizens. She served as assistant director of the City of Kings Mountain Home Based Child Care Program from 1976-1978.

She is a member of Eastside Baptist Church in Shelby, where she began teaching Sunday School at the age of 16. She has served as assistant director of the pre-school department for the past 11 years.

She served as a grademother at Bethware School for seven years and works in the women's department exhibits of the Bethware Community Fair. She has worked as manager of the Kings Mountain Ministerial Association Food Bank since November of 1978 and has served as treasurer of the Kings Mountain Ministerial Association Helping Hand Fund since June of 1979.

Four Commissioner Norman King, who represents the northern area on the city board. "I'm glad we're in the position to provide better water pressure for this area of town."

Mayor John Henry Moss added, "this project required a lot of patience and hard work. Some of the line installation costs on Stowe Acres was done through Clean Water Act money, but city personnel did all the work. We're very proud of the job the water and sewer, property and maintenance, and electrical departments did."

Moss said the city hopes to improve water services further north on Highway 216 in the near future. The city hopes to build a water storage tank in that area.
