Panel Discussion Scheduled

The Pre-Engineering Department at Belmont Abbey College has planned a Panel Discussion consisting of five prominent engineers from the Charlotte area.

The Panel Discussion, which will take place Thursday, Oct. 11 at 9:30 a.m. in Room 107 of the Gaston Science Building, is being coordinated through the efforts of Steve Swartz, vice president of the Southeast Region of P.Q.A. Engineering Company in Charlotte and a part-time member of the Belmont Abbey College faculty.

"We've assembled this panel to allow students who are aspiring engineers to test their goals and aspirations against the realities of the engineering market play," Swartz said.

Featured on the panel are Joe Stowe, director of Charlotte-Mecklenburg Utilities Department, who will speak on "Engineers in the Public Sector"; Jack Amar, a Geo-Technical engineer with Soil and Material Engineers, Inc., who will speak on "Geo-Technicians and Consulting Background"; Heyward Bellamy, with Heyward, Inc., whose topic will be "Engineers in Education and Engineering - Technical Sales"; and Thomas J. The Panel Discussion is open to the public.
