Craftsmen To Exhibit Work At Crafts Fair

More than 40 craftsmen will exhibit in the New Hope Community School of the Arts Crafts Fair on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. at New Hope Presbyterian Church.

In event of rain, the Fair will be held at New Hope Elementary School.

Beverly Lineberger, School of the Arts Director, said the Fair will feature handpainted items, basketry, needlepoint, ceramics, chair caining, woodcrafts and many other crafts featuring talents and hobbies of craftspeople from a wide area.

The $15 booth fee will be used for operating expenses and for a scholarship, said Mrs. Lineberger.

Craftspeople interested in renting a booth for the Fair may call the church, 824-1697.

Barbecue with all the trimmings will be available to show-goers, said Mrs. Lineberger.

The New Hope School of the Arts, under the auspices of the United Arts and Science Council of Gaston County, was organized in 1983 to offer cultural opportunities to people of all ages in and around the New Hope community, said Mrs. Lineberger. The curriculum includes art, creative writing, dance, drama, guitar, banjo, Kindermusik, piano and violin.

Crafts classes are offered as interest is shown. Classes in basketry, calligraphy, cooking, needlepoint, stained glass, tole painting and wood-working have been arranged for interested area people.

"Come to the Fair, you'll enjoy it," said Mrs. Lineberger.

Revised garbage collection policies and tougher environmental controls are needed for a cleaner, healthier county. County agencies dealing with public health and safety, the environment, and social services will receive the full support of the commission; in turn, they will be accountable to the commission -- and thus to the people.
