How to buy a sunscreen

Whether you tan slowly or get sun-baked is not the main cause of skin cancer, but rather the cumulative exposure to ultraviolet (UV) light from the sun.

Fair-skinned people have less protective pigment and are naturally at higher risk. UV exposure thickens and ages skin, too.

If you want to enjoy the sun, heed these two suggestions: Get yourself a sunscreen with the appropriate "Sun Protection Factor," and let me record it in your patient profiles so that next year you won't have to guess your best SPF rating.
