by no means are they all that we'll be doing," Davis said. "We plan to establish some form of special recognition for elementary children who excel in scholarship."

3) - Plan to articulate gains made in reading in grades K-7 to grades 8-12. Davis said in-service training for junior high teachers will help accomplish that goal.

4) - Establish more consistency in administration of School Board policies. Davis said he is working with the N.C. School Boards Association in reviewing policies and recommending additional policies. He said he should have some recommendations for the board within two months.

5) - Improve public relations. Davis said he hopes to develop a Public Relations Advisory Committee, continue providing annual reports to the people and revise the school brochure.

6) - Minimize loss of teaching-learning time because of disruptions during the school day. He said early dismissal for students at the high school will be eliminated, except for co-op work students, each principal will emphasize good attendance and minimize announcements, and will reduce pullouts of students for other activities.

7) - At the junior and senior highs, articulate more effectively the sports programs and other extra curricular activities with the academic program.

8) - Work on improving the School Board policy manual.

10) - Update personnel procedures. Davis said he is studying recommendations by the National School Boards Association.

11) - Improve interpretation of the annual financial audit. Davis said the auditor will be at future board meetings to explain details of annual audits.
