

Ask About Wildlife

QUESTION: A hunting companion told me recently that the dove hunting season would be open this year around the Thanksgiving holidays. Can you verify this and give the dates the season will be open. Also, will the shooting hours be all day or half a day? S.A. Lenoir.

ANSWER: The information your friend gave you is correct. The dove hunting season has been adjusted this year to give North Carolina sportsmen more days of quality hunting.

In most years a majority of the doves that are raised locally have migrated South by late September, leaving few birds to hunt during the end of the early portion of the dove season—which has traditionally closed in early October.

This year the Wildlife Resources Commission opted to take a week off the end of the early season, when birds are scarce, and make those days available for a week of dove hunting around the Thanksgiving holidays. Doves migrating in from northern states are generally quite numerous then and many North Carolina sportsmen have days off to hunt during the holidays. This "new" dove season opens on Saturday, November 17 and runs through Saturday, November 24th. Shooting hours are from one half hour before sunrise to sunset, and there is a 12 bird per day bag limit.

The late portion of the dove hunting season is essentially unchanged from last year. It opens on Friday, December 14th and runs through Tuesday, January 15. Shooting hours are from one half hour before sunrise to sunset and there is a 12 bird per day bag limit.
