

INJURED MOUNTAINEER - Paul Heffner, a flanker and member of the kicking teams for Kings Mountain's Mountaineers, suffered a broken arm in KM's victory over Hunter Huss two weeks ago. He'll probably miss the remainder of the season. The Mountaineers return to action Friday against Shelby at Gamble Stadium.

"As a nurse, I thought only surgery would relieve my back pain."

Then, a friend referred me to his chiropractor. An examination determined my pain might respond to chiropractic treatment. Now, I'm back at work... and almost pain-free... so there's no need for risky back surgery."

Surgery to relieve back pain should be considered only as a last resort. Many painful spinal conditions respond to gentle, natural chiropractic care... eliminating the pain and the need for surgery.
