See Us Before You Buy A New Home

THE AMERICAN WAY
By RUBY M. ALEXANDER

We are a nation of homeowners-and Americans seem to want it that way. A recent survey of the Harvard-M.I.T. Joint Center for Urban Studies reported that 79 percent of the people who bought homes in 1983 and 1984 most probably would have made the purchase even if home ownership didn't offer tax advantages.

Interestingly, our neighbors to the north have similar feelings. Canada does not let homeowners deduct interest payments or real estate taxes from their federal income taxes, yet Canadians own their own homes at close to the same rate as those in the United States.

Americans are also a nation of movers-around. Families pick up and move all over. Workers follow their jobs clear across the country. Most moves mean a house sold in the old location, and a new home in the new town.

We real estate professionals help make it all possible. You can depend on us to market your current property for its best possible price-AND introduce you to a broker in your new location who'll help you settle in there.

Put us to work for you. If you're set to move-across town or across the country-list with the leaders at Alexander Realty.
