

Gardner-Webb College Honors Abbie Miller Mitchell

Boiling Springs, Mrs. Abbie Miller Mitchell joined the Gardner-Webb faculty in 1937. Fifty years later the college has honored her by naming her professor emerita of music.

Mrs. Mitchell, a native and current resident of Owensboro, Kentucky, had been a private piano teacher in Owensboro for nine years before going to North Carolina and Gardner-Webb college in 1937. For 27 years she taught music at the college, later chairing the music department.

Following her marriage in 1963 to the late Clyde Mitchell, also of Owensboro, she left Gardner-Webb and with her husband spent a year in Texas.

Upon her return to Owensboro, she taught piano students at Kentucky Wesleyan college for 10 years. She served as organist at several churches, retiring last year as organist of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Owensboro.

In 1965 she reopened her piano studio, where she continues to teach private piano students. Next year Mrs. Mitchell will begin the sixtieth year of her career in music.

Still active in the profession, Mrs. Mitchell says, "I have been and am a member of the Saturday Musicale at Owensboro. I am the oldest performing member."

The status of professor emerita is not the first distinction Gardner-Webb College has bestowed on Mrs. Miller. In 1964, she received a Citizens Citation from the college in recognition of her outstanding achievement and service in the field of higher education.

Mrs. Mitchell earned bachelor of music and master of music degrees from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and the Bachelor of Arts from Kentucky Wesleyan College. Upon receiving her master's degree, she was elected to membership in Pi Kappa Lambda, an honorary society of musicians. Later she was elected to Delta Kappa Gamma, Society International, an honorary society of women teachers.

She was an active member of the Cecilia Music Club of Shelby while on the Gardner-Webb faculty and is a member of the D.A.R.

Gardner-Webb Receives Gifts

Boiling Springs, Two substantial gifts to Gardner-Webb College's $5.95 million capital campaign have been announced.

The Dover Foundation and family has made a gift of more than a half-million dollars. The foundation has given $250,000 and the family has more than matched that amount for a total of $540,100. Contributors include Charles I. Dover; Hoyt Q. and Anne Bailey; Dorothy Dover Dykers; and Harvey and Kathleen Hamrick. The gift will go toward revitalizing the campus center building named in Mr. Charles I. Dover's honor.

A $200,000 gift from Paul Broyhill of Lenoir has been announced. Broyhill, a retired chairman of the board of Broyhill Industries, designated his gift for the Broyhill School of Management, Gardner-Webb College's school of business.

Courses Set At UNC-C

Charlotte--The University of North Carolina at Charlotte will offer the fall 1987 session of the Engineering Management Certificate Program, Sept. 10-Dec. 17. This program is for engineers taking on management responsibilities who need to know practical skills in business planning, project management, managing capital and managing people effectively.

The program is divided into four modules of 15 hours each with classes meeting two evening per week. Participants may enroll in the entire program, with completion in four months, or enroll in one or more modules.

A team of six instructors from UNC-C's College of Business will teach the program. Several are trained as engineers as well as managers, and all have extensive on-the-job experience.

Firms represented include Freightliner, Sandoz Chemicals, Mill Power Supply, Westinghouse, Luwa Corporation, The Bouigny Company, Gold Bond Building Products, Metric Constructors, Pneumafil, Collins and Aikman, J.N. Pease Associates and the City of Charlotte.

The fee is $250 per module or $1,000 total for all four, including all instructional materials.

For further information, call UNC Charlotte's Office of Continuing Education at (704) 547-2424 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Summer Classes Set At UNC-C

Charlotte--Interested teachers and other school personnel may still register for classes in the University of North Carolina at Charlotte's special summer sessions.

A number of courses offered through UNC Charlotte's Math and Science Education Center have openings and prospective students may register at the first class meeting. The courses offer graduate credit which can count towards either a degree program or renewal.

The following course is scheduled for 9 a.m.-3 p.m. weekdays from July 27-Aug. 7: "Rocks and Minerals."

The following field course at the North Carolina coast is scheduled from Aug. 10-14: "Coastal Wetlands."
