Cleveland County Hospice Holiday Festival Slated

Everyone looks for one-of-a-kind Christmas presents—something that will thrill the recipient not only for its beauty but its uniqueness.

Buying such a gift will be made easier for those who attend the Hospice Holiday Festival party on Fri., Nov. 20 at the Hamrick Center in Shelby.

Gail Marshall of Auctions by Marshall of Charlotte will be selling dozens of hand-crafted items with all proceeds going to support Hospice of Cleveland County, a non-profit organization.

Items include a stained glass lamp, sculptures by various artists, a hand-painted deacon's bench, appliqued sweatshirts and a piece of jewelry custom-designed just for this sale. There will be Christmas decorating items such as stockings, wreaths and crocheted angels. Hand-knitted sweaters, cross stitch, needlepoint and tole painting will be among the gifts available.

For a different gift or for a personal treat, guests can bid on a tanning booth of health club certificate, fresh coconut cake or one-day to weeklong vacations, including a beach house that sleeps 10.

The party precedes the Hospice fund raising bake sale to be held the next morning beginning at 8 a.m. at the Shelby High School cafeteria. At the bake sale, the holiday hostess will find fresh cakes, pies and pastries and frozen entrees, casseroles and hors d'oeuvres to make the season enjoyable for everyone. There will be fancy dishes for entertaining and dishes to feed the family after the long day of shopping. It will be a good time to stock the freezer.

Smiths To Have Halloween House

Karen and Gary Smith of Kings Mountain will host a free Halloween Haunted House Saturday at their home at 411 Fulton Drive.

The scene will feature Dracula's wife, a coffin and body, huge mummy, fortune teller, funeral parlor, a talking head on a table, and a cemetery with a headless man.

Coffee and cookies will be served to adults and all children will receive a Halloween treat, compliments of area businesses.

The public is invited to come by the house from 6-10 p.m.

"We did this last year and it really caught on," said Ms. Smith. "It's good, clean fun for all ages and we appreciate all our neighbors and area businesses who have helped by donating candy and treats."

Eight adults from the neighborhood will be playing the parts of witches, devils, mummies, etc.

Yule Parade Entries Sought

Entry forms for Shelby's Christmas parade may be obtained from Robin Howell at 487-8173 or Sherry Patterson at 484-3003.

Shelby Jaycees are sponsoring the parade at 3 p.m. December 6.
