

Hildebrand Leaving KM

Paula Hildebrand, health education coordinator for Kings Mountain and Shelby schools for the past three years, has resigned to accept the position as health education coordinator for Wake County Public Schools.

Mrs. Hildebrand, who came here from Charlotte-Mecklenburg, will assume her new duties on February 1.

Supt. Bob McRae said the school system will begin advertising immediately for Mrs. Hildebrand's replacement and hopes to hire someone by February 1. Kings Mountain Schools will be in charge of taking applications but hiring Mrs. Hildebrand's replacement will be a joint venture with the Shelby Schools.

"We feel like the health education program in our school system has expanded dramatically since Paula has been here," said McRae. "We regret losing her. We appreciate the fine job she has done for us but wish her well as she assumes these duties in a larger school system."

Wake County has 78 schools and about 60,000 students, Mrs. Hildebrand said.

"It's with mixed emotions that I leave Kings Mountain and Shelby," she said. "I really enjoyed it here but the Wake County area is home to us."

Mrs. Hildebrand, a native of Zebulon and a graduate of Wakefield High School near Zebulon, said she hopes to work on her doctorate and moving to the Research Triangle area will help her in that endeavor.

"It has been a wonderful opportunity for me here, both personally and professionally, but this will be a challenge for me," she said.

Mrs. Hildebrand is a member of several professional organizations and is now parliamentarian of the North Carolina Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance. She has served as president of the association, on the Southern District Health Council and is a member of the national association.

She is a graduate of UNC-Greensboro and earned her masters degree from UNC-Charlotte. She has also studied at Gardner-Webb and Rutgers University.

Mrs. Hildebrand and her husband, Jon, live at Woodbridge. They have two sons, Jonathan, four, and Joseph, one.

through being a former Teacher of the Year, and the citizenry of Kings Mountain had shown their support of her by their vote of confidence in the election.

"We need to take advantage of her input and desire to serve the system," King said. "I put a lot of stock in the people's vote and she ran a very close third place. The people have confidence in her and that's very important."

The board voted to advertise for the vacancy in local newspapers and set a December 28 deadline for citizens to return applications to the superintendent's office. The board set a special meeting for January 5 at 7 p.m. to review the applications and interview applicants. The board may decide to make the appointment at that meeting, or may delay that decision until the regular January meeting on January 11.
