Cass Ballenger Receives 1987 Leadership Award

Congressman Cass Ballenger has been presented the 1987 National Security Leadership Award, the highest award given by the bi-partisan Congressional Caucus on National Security. The award was recently presented by John M. Fisher, chairman of the American Security Council, on behalf of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Reserve Officers Association, American Legion Auxiliary and the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Fisher said the award recognizes the leading role Ballenger has taken on a wide variety of defense and foreign policy issues. In addition, Ballenger received a perfect 100 percent rating on the American Security Council's National Security Voting Index for the first session of the 100th Congress.

"Cass Ballenger is just completing his first session on Capitol Hill, but it is already obvious that he will be a respected lawmaker for many years to come. He has certainly earned the respect and admiration of his colleagues, and we are especially grateful for his leadership on the Aviation Subcommittee of the Committee on Public Works and Transportation," Fisher said. "Congressman Ballenger clearly understands the real and present dangers facing our national security interests, and we are proud to have lawmaker of his caliber and distinction as our award recipient," he said.
