History Programs Scheduled At Cleveland College

Programs focusing on an important period in the history of Cleveland, Lincoln, and Rutherford counties are planned this month as part of Cleveland county's observance of the bicentennial of the U. S. Constitution.

The programs titled "We Want Freedom," will be presented at Cleveland Community College Auditorium in Shelby at 7:30 PM on Thursday, June 23, and Friday, June 24, by the Cleveland County Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution. No admission will be charged and tickets are not required. Receptions will follow both programs.

The 200th anniversary of the signing of the constitution was celebrated on September 17, 1987, but the Constitution wasn't ratified until two years after it was signed. National observance of the Bicentennial will continue to focus on key developments leading to ratification.

In North Carolina, 1988 marks the bicentennial of a Constitutional Convention held in Hillsborough on July 21-31, 1788. Delegates from across the state attended that convention and voted against ratification of the Constitution because it did not include a Bill of Rights. North Carolina didn't ratify the Constitution until a second convention in Fayetteville in 1789.

Two hundred years ago citizens of Lincoln and Rutherford counties met to debate the ratification issues and elect delegates to the Hillsborough convention. (Cleveland County was formed from portions of Lincoln and Rutherford in 1841).

On June 23, the "We Want Freedom" program will feature a dramatic reenactment of a Federalist vs. Anti-Federalist debate of what might have been argued by the delegates preceding the Hillsborough convention. Local performers will present this debate reenactment written by Virginia Greene Depriest.

Following the debate, Dr. Bobby Moss, former Limestone College history professor, will summarize arguments for and against ratification of the Constitution. The audience will be allowed to ask questions and will be asked to vote for or against the proposed Constitution.

On June 24, the "We Want Freedom" program will include a brief overview of the Constitution by Dr. Gordon McKinney, Western Carolina University history professor and music by folklorist Marilyn McMinn/McCredie, who will perform folk songs and folk tales from the 1775-1800 period.

"We Want Freedom" is made possible by grants from the N.C. Humanities Council and the N.C. Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution. Officers of the Cleveland County Bicentennial are Ted Hall, publisher of The Shelby Star, chairman.
