

Each Precious Memory Leads To More Memories

Precious memories! How they ever flood my soul. My ears remember hearing Red Foley singing this song, I think for the first time, in the mid-60's. Today, as we ponder Memorial Day, surely this song says and sings for us what our memories would like to voice for us.

For the last few weeks most of us in Grover have had an accumulation of memory inciters. One memory leads to another set of memories. I feel as though I've been sitting under a Niagara Falls itself with torrents of memories tumbling one after another.

Every time I go to town new memories are added. Now I'm remembering how cordially Annie Lee and Grover Rice always waved to everyone. They did not have a front porch, but they sat in their front yard up against the house with great pleasure and friendliness. I miss Elzie Hardin being on her front porch. Mrs. Addie Beam was one of the best porch sitters I've known. She lived near us for several years. She'd come home from work, go in the house for a few minutes, and come back and sit on the porch. She looked so relaxed and unbothered. One day she moved to a house on Walnut Street. I rode by there that same date late in the afternoon and there was Mrs. Addie sitting on the front porch. I look forward to seeing Lillie Mae Rollins on her porch this summer and the Crisp gang when they're in town. I'll miss Skinny Davis being on his porch.

I remember how comfortable Mrs. Bird always made me feel. Professor Bird was the principal at Grover School and I felt duty bound to feel a little bit intimidated by his presence, but not so with Mrs. Bird. I enjoyed comfortable memories with Mrs. Bird for a long time into our lives.

Jack Hughes sent me some copies of school pictures made when I was in the third grade. Oh! Precious! Precious memories for sure! I thought the Hord sisters, Mary Lou, Maude Ava, and Lona, were movie star gorgeous.

Then Andy and Bessie's Bunch came home to Grove (we always do) for Sady, and memories cam in torrents again.

Last week we gathered with Olie Mullinnix to remember the good life of Clyde. Olie and Clyde surely exemplified what a good marriage and home life can be. His people became her people and her people became his, and their God was the one and same.

Most of my news was hospital news last week. Stell Harry's family has kept a vigil for her all week. Being together like that and precious sacred scenes unfold and unfold.

I remember coming home about 30 years ago, from Mrs. Mary Westmoreland's funeral service. I remember those big Westmoreland men's shoulders shaking with little boy sobs. This was their mama they were letting go of. When I got home my little boy Joe was playing with his new beautiful pure white kitty cat. And all of a sudden we watched it get run over by a car and couldn't do a thing about it. Joe shook with sobs. I keep remembering we might have to learn from kitty cats to let our larger loves go.

Mary Robinson always remembers to include us in the specials at First Baptist. She called to invite one and all to the children's musical June 4 at 7:30 p.m. She also announced the marriage of her grandson, Max Davis, to Tammy Bumgardner on May 26 at 6 p.m. at Midview Baptist Church.

Hutch went to Danridge, Tennessee, for the wedding of his brother, Ralph Hutchison, Sunday. William McGinnis was the preacher for the day at Shiloh. I remember his daddy, Mr. Joe, holding the record for Sunday School attendance at First Baptist. I believe it was 44 years or there about.

Dick and Hilda Hobson were in Grover recently for a brief visit and asked to be remembered by one and all. I talked with Bob and Martha Wilson Saturday morning. Their daughter, Lynn, was married Saturday at 3 p.m. They, too, sent their remembrances.

I remembered to go get my tooth and root canal fame prepared for the crowning. I didn't even mention it to Patsy. She doesn't have time for a nap until after school is out for the year.

I've seen Mary Putnam on several occasions of late and we've stirred our memories together. We remembered how she, Sady and I slipped some cigarettes and tried to light them from the flame of an oil lamp. We got our eyebrows, lashes and front hair singed off. We kept trying to remember that surely our sins will find you out.

At this memorable time of recollections and the memories keep flooding in with every passing moment and new memories are made, I cannot fathom the marvel of the memories any more than I can be expanse of eternity and the on and on and onness of time and memory.

Even as we sing "Precious Memories" I am also singing, "Do Lord, O do Lord, O do remember me. Do, Lord, O do Lord, O do remember me."

Do this in Remembrance of Him.

Dixon Has Visitors On Homecoming

BY BECKIE STEWART

Dixon Presbyterian Church observed Homecoming last Sunday. A number of visitors were on hand to enjoy worship service and picnic lunch. Among those were Mrs. Paul Mauney of Gastonia and her daughter, Mrs. Pauline Kellam of Charlotte; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cline of Charlotte; Miss Mit Farris of Cherryville; Mr. and Mrs. Scott Fite of Lattimore; and Mrs. Julia Wood and daughter Cathy Clore; Mrs. Frances Greene and Mrs. Jan Stewart, all of Kings Mountain.

The tradition of presenting a gift of a Bible to our high school graduate was observed Sunday. Rev. Allan Sinclair presented Andy Berry, 1989 KMSHS graduate, with a Bible. Andy is son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Berry.

Everyone is invited to attend Bible School June 12-16 from 6 until 8 p.m. at Dixon Church. Teachers are Nancy Hughes, Mary Jo Stewart, Trudy Bridges, Hilda Kiser and Rev. Allan Sinclair.
