Many people move through life only half alive. They eat, breathe, work and sleep, indeed, perform all the necessary functions of life, but these things are done almost automatically. They take little notice of the world around them and of the people that inhabit it. How much they are missing of the things that make life worth living.

How different are those that have discovered God's love. For them, each day is like a miracle-another chance to discover the beauty of the earth. They are open to everyone and everything.

Take your first step towards becoming fully alive-attend the church of your choice this week.
