TIMOTHY FOSTER

Memorial services for Timothy Richard Foster, 35, of 912 First Street, who died July 15, 1990, were conducted Tuesday at 2 p.m. at Harris Chapel by Rev. Jerry Heath, interment following in Mountain Rest Cemetery.

A truck driver, he was a native of Kings Mountain, son of Jerral G. Foster of Vale and Hazel Verleen McCurry of Kings Mountain.

Also surviving are his daughter, Leigh Ann Foster of Brevard; brothers, Jerry Dean Foster and Jeffrey Foster, both of Kings Mountain, and Alfred Foster of Bessemer City; and sister, Linda Foster of Kings Mountain.

NOAH CALDWELL

Funeral services for Noah Stevenson Caldwell, 79, of 219 N. Carpenter Street, who died July 15, 1990 at Cleveland Memorial Hospital, were conducted Wednesday at 11 a.m. at Piedmont Baptist Church, of which he was a member.

Rev. Glenn Caldwell and Rev. Donald Denton officiated, and interment was in Chestnut Ridge Baptist Church Cemetery.

A native of Gaston County, he was the son of the late Sam A. and Lonia Garlin Caldwell. He was married to the late Lois Mullinax Caldwell and a retired textile employee. Caldwell was a lay minister and had led a radio program over WKMT Radio for 35 years.

Surviving are his son, Ervin Caldwell of Dallas; daughter, Peggy Turner of Baltimore, Md.; sister, Frances Blanton of Kings Mountain; eight grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

placed fifth in the versatility class of the show and Libby and Melissa were her grooms. For that particular class, the contestants and two grooms entered the ring and changed tacks to show in four events without leaving the ring. Events included Hunter Under Saddle, Western Pleasure, Barrels and Reining.

Melissa and Sunny Tag Deluxe finished seventh in the Novice Amateur Western Pleasure Class.

Audrey's family purchased her prize winner, Cowboy, from the T/L Ranch in Dallas last year and since then have shown him in shows in both Carolinas, Georgia and Virginia, bringing home numerous awards and points to Cowboy's credit. "Cowboy stood grand in all the shows," said proud Audrey.

The Fallses have shown Paints and Quarterhorses for a number of years, taking vacation trips to horse shows with the two girls and their horses. Brenda Falls says the girls show their horses in shows almost every month. The big horse complexes in Raleigh and Arden offer shows even in the winter time because the riding rings are inside. Horse enthusiasts like the Falls appreciate the North Carolina arenas which cut down on their traveling time. There's a Turkey Circuit during Thanksgiving and a Easter Bunny Circuit during Easter Weekend, to name a few of the special events the young trainers participate in with their beauties.

"Horse training is a real challenge for our daughters," says Brenda, who says that Audrey wants to develop what has begun as a hobby into a profession. Brenda and Jim Falls and Grandpa J. B. Falls are encouraging the girls to go on to college after high school but now that the horses are winning in competitive events the girls like the idea of becoming professional trainers and showing horses for a living.

Audrey raised and trained her 2-year-old Quarterhorse, Smokys Social Lassie, one of three foals of Smokys Sapphire which the family acquired in a trade six years ago. Audrey and Libby take care of the horses. Smokys Social Lassie is goodminded and learns quickly and Audrey has taught her to give her a kiss and to bow, which she hopes will bring the horse extra points in the Tom Powers Futurity in Raleigh August 15. That show draws horse lovers from as far distant as Texas and California.

Jerry Reid of Southern Pines Quarterhorses fitted Cowboy for the championship show and was trainer. Audrey says Cowboy will be ready for the World Show in Lexington, Ky. in 1991. Her family is planning their vacation to attend the show.

W.P. GIBBONS JR.
