First Carolina Federal Bank Elects Officers

First Carolina Federal Savings Bank paid record dividends of $5,214,064.11 to depositors during the past year and savings accounts, which now stand at $78,222,234.00, increased by $9,566,585.00. This represents a substantial 13.93% increase in the past 18 months.

President Gary H. Whitaker gave the report to shareholders at the annual meeting Thursday at the main office at 300 West Mountain Street.

Directors elected for three year terms were William S. Fulton Jr., Ruby H. Baker and Gary H. Whitaker. They join the remaining members of the Board, which consists of C. A. Allison, Glee E. Bridges, George E. Lewis, Dr. John C. McGill and Dr. Robert N. Baker.

Dr. John C. McGill, Kings Mountain medical doctor, was appointed Chairman of the Board by the Board of Directors who also elected Whitaker as President and Managing Officer; Glee E. Bridges and George E. Lewis, Vice-Presidents, Ronald L. Franks, Vice-President and treasurer, Brenda N. Lovelace, Secretary, and Kathy B. Butler, Assistant Secretary.

Whitaker advised shareholders that while the Savings Bank had not set a new record, the loan department had been active in closing 312 mortgage loans totaling $17,474,328.58, since the last annual meeting. This brought the Bank's total loan portfolio to a total of $70,381,881.60. Whitaker told shareholders he was particularly proud to have been able to add this much to the local economy during a period when interest rates had risen significantly and during a time when the economy as a whole was softening.

Whitaker said that the Bank had been able to book $348,321.00 in profits, a figure he was particularly proud of since during that same period the Bank had paid a total of $199,285.00 in federal insurance premiums and special assessments on the accounts of the shareholders. Reserves of the Bank at the end of June 1990 totaled $3,678,864.00.

First Carolina Federal Savings Bank has been continuously in operation in Kings Mountain since 1907, first as Kings Mountain Building and Loan Association, later Kings Mountain Savings and Loan Association and more recently as First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Kings Mountain. All of the name changes have been due primarily to the changes in the regulatory character of the institution over the years. Most recently another name change was implemented to more correctly reflect the nature of the business.

"First Carolina Federal Savings Bank is the newest name which we feel more correctly addresses our services, which include checking, savings, auto and consumer loans as well as our traditional CDs and mortgage loan business," said Whitaker.

Whitaker told shareholders that with guarded optimism he looks forward to another good year "at our hometown, First Carolina Federal Savings Bank."

the low bid for sewer improvements at Wise Industries, and recommend contract for electrical materials.

Stewart Construction Company is doing preliminary earth work for a 12 inch water line tie-in off Phifer and Crocker Road.

Kennedy Construction is installing four concrete crypts in the KM Industrial Park at Buckeye Industry water meters and are expected to complete this above ground vaulting next week.

Southeastern Consulting Co., electrical engineers, are completing design preparation for the electrical line to run to KM Industrial Park.

City electrical crews installed beautiful lights this week at the city's new walking track at Jake Early Memorial Park.

Walt Ollis and sanitary sewer crews are using a brand new $35,000 TV camera for the first time this week photographing the sewer lines. "This camera is really a gem and shows beautiful pictures of the sewer lines which will be very necessary to us as the city makes improvements in sanitary sewer," said Howard.

Street lights were put up this week at Country Creek, Mountain Manor and Deerwood Park subdivisions.

Workers started "in earnest" this week on the Pilot Creek expansion on U.S. 74 West with preliminary earth work, said Howard.

to music discs, the expansion will up production of ROM (read only memory) discs for the information industry. The local plant is reportedly already the largest manufacturer of ROM discs in the world.

A $12 million expansion at Phillips Optical, announced last year, is also currently underway.

In its first year of operation Phillips & DuPont made 15 million to 20 million discs. "We hear all kinds of music," Crawley laughed, noting that the local plant makes compact discs for both music and information storage for computers. Discs account for the major part of production and are sold nationally to music companies, including Polygram Music Co., the third largest music supplier in the country, and companies like Warner E.

A. and CBS Records. One area of the massive plant includes sound-proof music recording studios and a huge high-technology production and packaging area where discs for such artists as Eric Clapton and New Kids On the Block are prominently displayed in a wide assortment of packages ready to be shipped out to a growing market.

"News of this expansion is just great, we're elated," said Loretta Cozart, executive director of Kings Mountain Chamber of Commerce. Cozart said that Phillips DuPont has a track record of hiring workers from Kings Mountain and surrounding areas and training them.

Phillips & DuPont Optical Inc. is a joint venture between the Phillips Co. of Netherlands and E. I. DuPont, Inc. of Wilmington, Delaware. The company also operates plants in Hanover, West Germany, Louviers, France and Blackburn, England.

"We're delighted to be in Cleveland County," said Crawley.

Cleveland County Jaycees Attending Leadership College

Cleveland County Jaycees President Rick Hurt and six other chapter officers attended the North Carolina Jaycees Local Officers' Leadership College recently at High Point College.

The Local Officers' Leadership College is held annually to train incoming chapter officers in the management skills and programming responsibilities needed to better serve their communities.

Over 400 jaycees from across North Carolina attended the one day seminar, according to Mossy White, President of the North Carolina Jaycees. A few topics covered with the new officers included Public Relations, Development Programs, Financial Management, Fundraising and Communications.

Other chapter members attending the Leadership College were Scott Heath, Management Development Vice President; Dan Williams, Community Development Vice President; Bryan Baker, Membership Development Vice President; Stephanie Carothers, Local Director; Angela Heath, Treasurer; and Darleen Ruff, Secretary.
