CROWDS ATTEND WEST PTO MEETING-The first meeting of the fall of West PTO attracted 325 people who enjoyed a hot dog supper and a humorous program by Reg Alexander of Regal Graphics. Alexander also delighted the audience with musical selections. Prior to the meeting the new principal, Sherrill Toney, encouraged more involvement by parents in their child's education.

"It was a tremendous turnout of parents and teachers," he said. From left with Alexander are Jessica Barnette, Wendy Barnette, Hunter Gaffney, Lindsey Gaffney, Rebecca Miller and Shakara Young. Mike and Roxanne Gaffney, co-presidents of West PTO, arranged the program and attendance prizes went to K-2 students of Mrs. Hilda Leonard and Grades 3-5 students of Mrs. Bea Smith.

Before-Care and After-School Care is offered to working parents for their children at each of the elementary schools and this fall for the first time the program will expand to Grover, where Before-Care service will begin at 5:30 a.m. At the other schools, Before-Care starts at 6:30 a.m. After-Care, which includes tutoring homework, art and supervised play, continues when school dismisses until 6 p.m. Cost of the service is $22.50 if the child is at school until 6 p.m. and $15.00 if the child is there until 4:30 p.m. Six people are employed in this program and an outing is held at end of school. Nutritional snacks are included.

Sixty K-5 students enjoyed arts, ceramics, math and computer science in the Summer Enrichment program at Bethware School which enrolled 60 children.

With the start of a new school year, Hager is embarking on a program to get more parent involvement and enlist more volunteers. He also wants to get more business people involved and spread the word in the community that Community Schools program is just that.

Hager finished school at the old Reed High School in Belmont, son of Dorothy Hager of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. and the late Roscoe Hager. He received his undergraduate degree from Elizabeth City State Teacher's College in elementary education and grammar and completed his graduate work at Western Carolina University, receiving his master's in educational administration. A native of Gaston County, he met his wife, Anna Jane Lennon, in college. She is a fourth grade teacher at Washington Elementary School in Waco with 26 years experience in the classroom. The family includes William Henry Hager II, who graduated N. C. Central University and is a Second Lieutenant in the Army stationed in Fort Sill, Okl.; Marcus Hager, is a graduate student at A&T University, David Hager, a senior at N. C. Central University in Durham; and Darian Hager, a freshman at N. C. Central University. The grandchildren are Francesca Hager, 3, and Christina Hager, 4.

Hager sees the need for more minorities, especially males, in the field of education. He knew he'd probably go into education because he was greatly influenced by high school principal Harry Blue and brick mason Ezra Forney who called him "Henry." During his college career, friends nicknamed him "Bill" and now the name "Hager" suits.

Kings Mountain is home to Hager, who at first thought he'd teach one year and return to school and get married. He married in October 1961 after two months on his new job and stayed in Kings Mountain.

Active in New Bynum Chapel AME Zion Church, he is a lifelong Democrat and serves as secretary-treasurer of West Precinct. Since he doesn't live inside the city limits, he's never run for office. But that doesn't mean he wouldn't like to win. A 32nd degree Mason, he has been a Boy Scout leader and Cubmaster and served on Boy Scout committees over the years. His interest in kids hasn't been confined to the classroom. "I tell kids to make a step forward and not find excuses." His philosophy is "Find an excuse for doing, not for not doing." The family resides at 126 Rollingbrook Road. In his spare time, he reads, listens to music and enjoys sports. He attends school athletic functions and is a fan of the KM Boys Club team.

In preparing the annual report for the KM School System, Hager said he he has been impressed with the high quality of leadership in the community. He also prepares the newsletter, "Echo" which goes to system-wide employees and he and his secretary oversee the use of all school facilities, including the ballfields and Barnes Auditorium.

He welcomes volunteers who want to listen to kids read, tutor a child in math and reading, and his office keeps a record of the number of volunteers in the system.
