Theater production April 18-21

Kings Mountain Little Theater will present "Toward Zero", a Agatha Christie murder mystery, April 18-21 at Park Grace Auditorium.

The shows will be the last presented on the Park Grace stage. The Little Theater will be moving next season to the old Central School and plan a major capital improvements drive to renovate the building.

Mary Ann Grant will direct the mystery play on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m.

The setting for the three-act play is the drawing room of the home of Lady Pressilian played by Katharine Mauney. A group of people are brought together after some years apart and action centers around the relationship of Neville Strange, portrayed by Craig Yarbro, and his former and present wives, Kay and Audrey Strange portrayed by Stacey Grooms and Stephanie Myers.

Other members of the cast include Joe Hullender as Matthew Treves; Jim Champion as Thomas Royde; Shannon Hullender as Mary Alden; Chuck Wilson as Ted Latimer, David Jones as Supt. Battle; David Blanton as Inspector Leach and Sam Wilson as P. C. Benson.

The play is partially funded by a grassroots grant from the N. C. Arts Council.

'HUCK FINN STORY'-Tarradiddle Players will present "Huck Finn's Story" Friday night at 7:30 p.m. at Myers Center Auditorium at Gaston College. Admission for the family entertainment, recommended for school-age children and adults, is $3.00 at the door. Tarradiddle Players is a touring company of the Children's Theatre of Charlotte.
