Flowers stolen

Grave robbers took 10 silk and artificial floral arrangements from a new grave in Mountain Rest Cemetery last week.

Family members said the tent was still up on the William Sellers plot when they returned to see the floral tributes and found at least 10 missing.

Persons with any information about thefts of floral pieces from the cemetery are asked to contact the Mountain Rest Cemetery office or the Kings Mountain Police Department.

5,805 charged

Operation Eagle, the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety's drunk driving enforcement program, resulted in 5,805 charges in 1992.

"It was a very successful year," said Secretary Alan V. Pugh. "Not only were 851 potentially deadly drunk drivers removed from the road, but we were able to work with many local law enforcement agencies for the first time."

Operation Eagle combines state and local law enforcement to arrest drunk drivers and draw public attention to the problem of drinking and driving in North Carolina. Officers set up checking stations to screen motorists for drunk driving, and go undercover in establishments which serve alcohol to look for potential drunk drivers and observe whether servers are obeying state liquor laws.

In the entire five years of the program, Operation Eagle has resulted in 20,159 charges with 3,554 driving while impaired arrests and 130 arrest for sales to intoxicated persons.

Besides the 851 arrests for DWI in 1992, the State Highway Patrol and local officers also charged 791 people for not having a driver's license, 474 for driving with their license revoked, and 764 for not wearing their seat belts. State Alcohol Law Enforcement agents arrested 17 people for selling alcohol to intoxicated persons and 64 for underage possession of alcohol.
