Grover to keep trees despite dark streets

GROVER - The trees that dot vest money in downtown growth the store fronts along Main Street probably won't be removed anytime soon, despite pleas from merchants that streets are dark.

Town Board Monday night asked merchants to wait until more lights are put up before adding lights in front of their businesses for which two merchants volunteered to pick up the tab.

"Walk down Main Street at night and see the reason we need the lights and an extended parking area," said Bill Lail. We also have a drainage problem behind the buildings.

Commissioner Jack Herndon said he believed that more lights across the street from the store fronts will help but the new owner of the Shake Shop cautioned about walking on pavement in the dark and also worried about keeping her business open late at night without more adequate lighting.

"These trees are big now and affect the lighting," said Juanita Pruette, who was a member of the Woman's Club when the trees were given as memorials in a beautification project spearheaded some years ago by Martha Scruggs.

We'll take a look at it,"said Commissioner Tim Rowland. "If these merchants are willing to inwe need to help but it takes one step at a time.'

The trees block the buildings," said Lail. "Take a gander at night and you'll see how dark it is on Main Street in Grover."

Mayor Ronald Queen agreed that revitalization is important but that more resources are needed.

In other actions, the board: Spent $18,000 for paving of Cherry, Spruce, Chestnut and Springdale Streets.

Agreed to stay behind Amesbury Road residents who are lagging on tap fees, reminding them fees must be paid by October 15 or face a $500 sewer tap fee plus a $35 reconnect fee.

Spent $4200 on repairs for sidewalks, including 18 loads of dirt used in improvements on Main Street along the railroad tracks and agreed to pay $5,000 for more Christmas lights.

Set the Grover Christmas parade for December 12 and agreed to participate on a city float. Bought uniform speed limit signs and posts at cost of $50 each for Highway 29, Blackburn Road, Highway 226, Bethlehem Church Road, Mulberry Road, Hicks Road and for the Municipal Park.

Dr. Larry Allen updated the building program and announced that West School dedication will be held October 19 at 7 p.m. and that the library addition at North School is almost completed. "We need to get a handle on the costs before we talk seriously about moving now into Central School and make the best use of available resources," said Allen. The system is looking at moving the administration offices into the old Central plant which was vacated this year by West Elementary students when the new building at West was complet-

Scholastic Aptitude Tests rose at Kings Mountain schools this year. KMH students posted the biggest gains, 56 points, and the highest scores, 896, just four points below the national average, reported Jean Thrift. Two years ago a task force composed primarily of teachers was formed at KMHS to develop ways to raise scores such as encouraging ninth graders to take more challenging courses.
