Students score high on state tests

Grover School fourth graders and eighth graders at KM Middle School scored above the state average on state writing tests given earlier in the year.

Fourth and sixth graders scored below the state average of 2.5 or better.

The results were reported by Jean Thrift to the Kings Mountain Board of Education Monday night.

Thrift said eighth graders showed much improvement since they didn't do well on the same test when they were in sixth grade.

"This shows an effort on the part of the kids and the teachers," said Supt. Dr. Bob McRae. "Forty two percent of the 8th grade scored a 3 on the writing test."

Both Thrift and Dr. Jane King said that teachers and administrators will assess why the students didn't do well in 4th and 6th grade testing and work on bringing the scores up at more staff development courses this fall.

Ten percent of Kings Mountain 4th graders scored 2.5 or better on the focused holistic score where the possible score of 4.0 was attained by only .9 percent of students in North Carolina.

On the analytic score Kings Mountain 4th graders were just below the state average, 68.8% to 69.7%; but on word usage, mechanics and spelling Kings Mountain scored above the state average.

Eighth graders moved up in scoring from 63 percent last year to 75 percent this year and ranked above the state average which was 57.9 percent of students who scored 2.5 or better on a possible score of 4.0. Kings Mountain was just under the state average, 5.3%, of students scoring 4.0. Kings Mountain's score was 4.9%. In sentence formation, KM scored above the state average.
