

KELLY MCFARLANE

Kelly McFarlane is christened

Twenty-five relatives were present when Kelly Heavner McFarlane, daughter of Marilou and Craig McFarlane of Corte Madera, CA was christened May 30 at Grace United Methodist Church by Rev. Patricia Stone.

Kelly wore the dress her father wore when he was christened in 1956.

Mrs. Kay Hambricht sang a solo dedicated to Kelly. It was entitled, "Masterpiece."

Kelly's grandparents, Jim and Pam Heavner of Chapel Hill, Phyllis and Neil Kelly of Spartanburg, SC and Donna McFarlane of Redding, CA and her great-grandparents Louise Heavner of Kings Mountain, Mary Colclough of Winston-Salem and Mrs. Ilene McCaig of British Columbia, Canada attended.

Kelly is also the granddaughter of the late Don McFarlane and great-granddaughter of the late Plato Heavner of Kings Mountain and Loris Colclough of Winston-Salem.

Other family members present were Casey Heavner from San Francisco, CA, Wendy Heavner and Randy Gressett of Alexandria, VA, Kim McFarlane of Sunnyvale, CA, Cary and Carolyn Kasdorf and Charlie and Lori Warlick of Cary, Loris and Betty Colclough, Beth, Madison, and London White of Winston-Salem and Bonnie Owens, Howard Allen and Orea Sanders, all of Kings Mountain.

Bryan Dellinger earns promotion

Bryan Dellinger, a preloader for United Parcel Service, has been promoted to a preload supervisor.

Dellinger has been UPS employee for one year and most recently served as a preloader in the Charlotte area. His new responsibilities include supervising the preload team at UPS's facility in Charlotte.

Dellinger lives in Kings Mountain.

Methodists to meet at Lake Junaluska

LAKE JUNALUSKA - Voting members of the 1993 annual meeting of the Western N.C. United Methodist Conference here June 10-13 will face a host of Christian social concerns issues, including a proposed policy on sexual harassment.

Bishop Bevel Jones of Charlotte will be presiding as the Conference members, representing 1,155 churches, handle other legislation, a 1994 budget proposal, and receive the clergy appointments for the 1993-94 church year.

The more than 2,000 voting members, laity and clergy, along with friends and families, will bring more than 4,000 persons to the Assembly, Waynesville, and the Maggie Valley area.

The Commission on Status and Role of Women will propose a "Lay Personnel and Laity Sexual Harassment Policy and Procedures" to be implemented prior to the 1994 Annual Conference here in June 1994.

A key element of the policy will be establishment of Mediating Teams in the 14 districts with the function of providing "a safe place for victims and accused to deal with concerns about sexual harassment in a unbiased, fair, knowledgeable, and Christian environment."

Social concerns issues will include those on the international scene and those which are domestic.

International petitions will deal with the Conference's stands on Somalia and Mozambique, Bosnia Herzegovina, and Armenia.

Domestic petitions will include those on Universal Health Care Access, Ethics in Investment, opposition to a North Carolina lottery, "Call to Care" substance abuse awareness Sundays, the New Salem Project of Winston-Salem, and continuing support of the Self-

Help Credit Union.

A major happening off the Lake Junaluska grounds and yet a part of the Annual Conference, will be construction of a Habitat for Humanity house in nearby Waynesville during the week of the annual meeting. Under sponsorship of the Conference's United Methodist Foundation, work began June 7 with the recipient family presented to the Conference at the close of the week.

Celebrations during the week will include the 25th for the Western North Carolina Conference, the 100th for the Brotherhood/Sisterhood funding organization, and the 10th for the United Methodist Agency for the Retarded.

The State of the Conference as seen by the 14 district superintendents will come in an address by the Rev. Olin B. Isenhour, superintendent of the North Wilkesboro District, on June 10.

New members of the clergy will be ordained and new diaconal ministers will be consecrated Saturday night. Clergy retiring will be recognized Friday morning.

'Fat Jehoshaphat' at Second Baptist

The King's Kids - the children's choir of Second Baptist Church, 120 Linwood Road, Kings Mountain - will present the musical/drama "Fat, Fat Jehoshaphat" Sunday, June 20 at 7 p.m.

The public is invited. For more information, call the church at 739-4216.

Choir to sing at Central UMC

The 20-voice Youth Choir of Trinity United Methodist Church of Greenville, TN will present the musical, "LAMU," Saturday night at 7 p.m. at Central United Methodist Church.

A reception will honor the performers after the concert.

"LAMU" revolves around a missionary youth group and their plans to travel in Africa. One boy has problems at home and plans to run away while the group is in Africa. The youths' peers rally around him and offer support. The performance is a combination of skits and music.

"The upcoming performance will be intriguing and enjoyable and we hope that all youth in the area will attend the 45-minute program," said Linda Dixon, education/music director, and Chris Westmoreland, director of youth ministries at the host church.
