Spectrum to give bulbs at M-Day

Over 70,000 tulip and daffodil bulbs will be blooming in Kings Mountain next spring thanks to Spectrum Dyed Yarns Inc.

The company is giving packages of two dozen bulbs to every visitor who stops by the company's booth on Mountaineer Day October 8. The City of Kings Mountain and the Woman's Club will also be distributing the bulbs to local people.

Doug Blanchard, chief executive officer of Spectrum, had the idea for the project to help beautify public areas of the community. After ordering 2,000 bulbs for city-wide beautification, he upped the order to include any resident who wants to plant daffodils and tulips at their home gardens.

Howard G. Jones, Spectrum's Corporate Director of Human Resources, says if citizens miss getting a free packet of bulbs at the Mountaineer booth they can call Spectrum or go by the local offices at 136 Patterson Road and pick up their bulbs.

Jones said that volunteers from the plant will package the bulbs next week.
