"I didn't have a single clue about this party," said a surprised White who said that he had accompanied county planner Bill McCarter to Charlotte Wednesday morning and they were planning to eat at Fred Kiser's Restaurant but instead McCarter turned into the parking lot of the Kings Mountain Fire Department.

"I was almost speechless," he said.

But White's friend Maney said White was never speechless. "Gene's favorite words are 'let me keep this brief' and he proceeds through 10 pages of notes.

Kelly interspersed his humorous remarks with praise for White's leadership of numerous zoning matters in town, particularly the current dredging project at Moss Lake.

White, responding to his well-wishers, also noted that the beginning this week of the much-needed dredging project was a highlight of accomplishments of his long career.

The party was held in the bay area of the fire department. Barbecue pork and chicken with all the accessories and a good luck cake featured the menu.
