Kids Etc! joins Nancy Reagan program

Kings Mountain District Schools Kids Etc. Program has been chosen to participate in the Nancy Reagan After School Program.

The Reagan program combines the technology and appeal of video with the simple joy of hands-on activities. Videos portray real life situations involving self-esteem, peer-pressure, substance abuse and related issues. They are designed to trigger lively discussions among the groups.

The creative activities allow imagination and creativity to flourish in ways that make youth value themselves, their lives and others.

Patsy Walker, director, feels that the program is important because "when a child's talents and creativity are allowed to flourish they are much less likely to turn to negative behavior in search of attention. The creative spark, when kept lit, helps make the students feel alive, whole and valuable."

"Kids Etc! can be a perfect place for children to realize the creative and imaginative skills within themselves."

Walker said the Reagan Program will start at Kids Etc! sites in March.

Jeff Johnson of WJZY TV-46 Kids Club recently visited the KM Kids Etc! program. He presented a program that emphasized and promoted the importance of non-violence in schools and self-esteem among students.

Johnson also discussed the negative aspects of peer-pressure and expressed to students that they should always be themselves and stand for what they believe.

Students from all five Kings Mountain Kids Etc! programs attended the presentation. All 150 students received Johnson's autograph.

Renowned teachers join Divinity staff

BOILING SPRINGS - The Gardner-Webb University School of Divinity has added renowned teaching couple Drs. Sheri and Bob Adams to its full-time faculty.
