

Dr. Jane King, standing, introduces Barbara Parramore, seated, State President of the North Carolina Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development during a conference in Kings Mountain.

Supt. Dr. Bob McRae, left, and Board of Education Chairman Ronnie Hawkins, right, congratulate wedding student Travis Slycord who is bound for national competition and Reliance Electric supervisor Randy Lail and Human Resources Director Rick Whitehurst for sponsorship of the apprentice program of which Slycord participates. Reliance will sponsor Slycord in the national competition with an all-expense-paid trip to Kansas City, Mo.

Regional conference hosted by KMHS

Kings Mountain High School hosted the recent regional drive-in conference attended by educators in the North Carolina Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development.

Dr. Jane King, Region 6 President, and State President Barbara Parramore were featured presenters. Other presenters were Bonnie Miller, Principal of Stenwood Elementary School in Fairfax, Va., Linda Stroupe of Johnson Elementary School in Buncombe County; Kaye Lamb of Reynolds Middle School in Buncombe City; Cliff Wilson of Shelby High School and Faye Burton of Shelby City Schools; and Glenda Poole of Cabarrus County Schools.

Other facilitators from Kings Mountain were Dianna Allen, Lynda Stewart, Ethel Pedersen, and Supt. Dr. Bob McRae.

The conference was on the theme, "Educators Share Successful Practices that Lead School Systems to Higher Achievement." The afternoon meeting closed after dinner in the high school cafeteria.

CURTAIN GOING UP - The Kings Mountain Little Theatre will present "Nunsense" Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Woman's Club. The show, which received rave reviews last weekend by playgoers, features Theresa Williams, left, Susan Cannon, Linda Strachan, Linda Dixon and Patsy Stone in the comedy roles of the Sisters of Hoboken.

Latin I new class for KMHS students

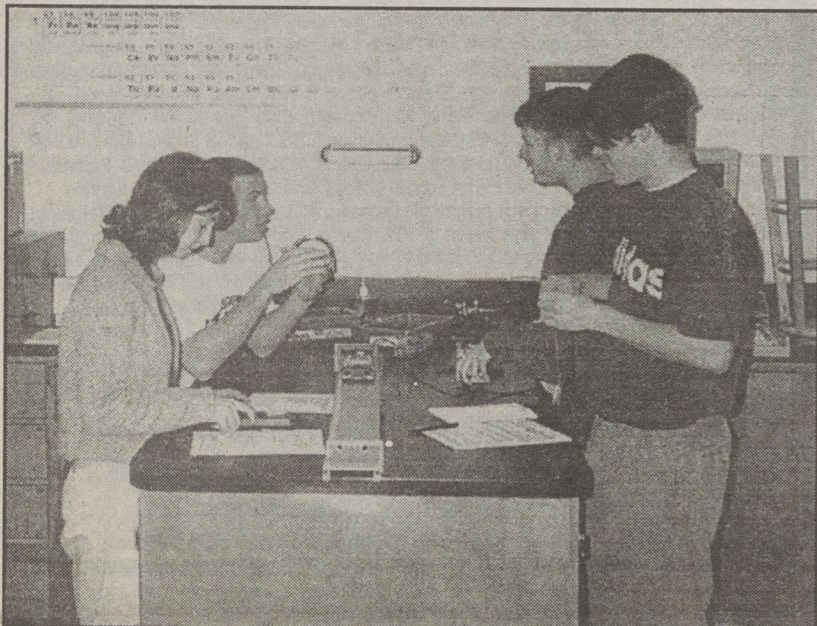

Nine Kings Mountain High students have been taking Latin I this year via satellite, receiving live broadcasts with the TI-IN Network from their certified Latin instructor in Texas.

Students interacted with the Latin teacher during class via telephone and via microphone-equipped keypads. In addition, they had the opportunity to work individually with TI-IN via e-mail or through the network's evening homework hotline number.

Julie Rikard, a former English teacher and currently a media specialist at KMHS, is facilitator for the course funded by the N. C. State Department of Public Instruction.

Rikard said TI-IN Network is the nation's leading provider of distance learning technology.

KMHS LABS - Molly Blanton, Justin Champion, Brad Leonard and Robby Dalton use the computers in the Physics labs at Kings Mountain High School experiencing modern technology and its applications.
