Grover's Town Council addresses parking problem

By Alan Hodge Staff Reporter

Grover Town Council Monday night focused on traffic and parking problems in the downtown and Town Hall areas. In response to illegal parking in handicapped spaces, a motion was made to amend the town parking ordinance so that fines would be payable directly to Grover. City Attorney Mickey Corry explained the North Carolina state law concerning handicapped space violation and fines and the Council agreed to defer to those regulations. Council members discussed parking lot marking, installation of handicapped space signs, and the placing of concrete bumpers with iron pins around City Hall. Mayor Max Rollins brought up the subject of vehicles using Grover as a turnaround due to increased traffic from commercial growth across the state line. Mayor Rollins suggested that barrels be strategically placed so that incidents such as the one where a large truck damaged a water line behind City Hall could be avoided.

Other business discussed at the meeting included the transfer of a 1992 Chevrolet Caprice automobile to the Grover Rural Volunteer Fire Department and the decision to hire Ronald L. Queen as a water and sewer consultant. Mayor Pro-tem John Higginbotham suggested and accepted that a record be kept of the actual use made of Queen's services.

The subject of Grover's Christmas decorations was reviewed with the information that many of the lights needed repair or replacement. A motion was made to spend $5,000 on lights, but was not seconded. At the suggestion of Council member Bill Favell a two man committee including Favell and Councilman Jack Herndon was appointed by Mayor Rollins to study the situation.

Concluding the meeting was the Mayor's Report which touched on the proposed Grover Library. Comments were also given by citizens Edith Morgan concerning litter in the city cemetery and Woman's Club member Evelyn Willis about the organization's annual Christmas parade.
